RELIEVING OF AVIATOR

Expeditions Converging Today on Anadyr From Khabarovsk and Nome

CHICAGO, July 12: (Canadian Press)—A plan to send two rescue planes to Siberia so that James J. Mattern, Texas aviator, could complete his solo flight around the world was announced today by his backers in the venture. S. J. Sackett, one of the sponsors of Mattern's globe-encircling undertaking, said that he had been informed that a Pan-American Airways plane was ready at Fairbanks to take off for Anadyr, where Mattern is at present following his forced landing, and that another speedy ship, part of William Alexander's relief expedition, is also waiting in Alaska. Sackett said that, if both ships were sent, one of them would be turned over to Mattern for him to fly alone to Alaska and thence to New York, the other being used by Alexander and his companions to take them back to Terrace where they will pick up their own plane and return east.

Expected at Anadyr

MOSCOW, July 12: (Canadian Press)—Pilot Levanovsky of the Northern Sea Route, a private Russian commercial flying concern, expects to reach Anadyr on Friday evening and to land in Nome with James J. Mattern, United States round the world flyer, twenty-four hours later, according to advices received from Khabarovsk.

ANYOX IS CHEERFUL

"Anyox looked like old times on Saturday and Sunday," it was remarked this morning by D. C. Scott, well known confectionery travelled from Vancouver, who spent the week-end in the smelter town and arrived from there on the Catala yesterday. The people of Anyox are feeling highly elated over the recent ten percent all around wage increase by Granby Co. and, with the copper price showing further advances, are very cheerful as to the immediate future.

"Dave" Scott is one of the best known commercial travellers in the country. He recalls that it was 1910 when he paid his first visit to Prince Rupert, registering at the old Premier Hotel.

Newspaper Story Is Showing Here

Lee Tracy Plays Part of Columnist In "Blessed Event" at Capitol Theatre

Based on the Broadway stage hit, "Blessed Event," feature offering on the Capitol Theatre screen here this mid-week, is a fast moving drama about a Broadway columnist of the Walter Winchell type. As an exposition of how such a dirt disher works, the story leaves little to be desired and Lee Tracy in the title role gives a dynamic performance. The action is kept pulsating at all times, and there is plenty of smart comedy, nifty wisecracks and human interest stuff so that the story will strike a general appeal.

The principal dramatic moments in the piece concern Tracy's refusal to be intimidated by a racketeer who wants his scandal kept out of the paper. Tracy crashes a ritzy night club opening which had advertised that he would be barred, and there he foils the gangsters, with the head crook being bumped off in the set-to.

Mary Brian is the love interest, and Dick Powell is good as a "crooner."

LINDBERGHS ON FLIGHT

Famous American Flyer and Wife Are Making Aerial Trip to Greenland

HALIFAX, July 12: (Canadian Press)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here at 6:40 last evening from North Haven, Maine, and took off today for the north in the course of a flight from New York to Greenland. They left New York on Sunday under adverse weather conditions and landed at North Haven. Lindbergh is engaged in a mapping reconnaissance of a portion of a projected new trans-Atlantic air route.

HEAR TALK ON LONDON

ing that street that marching priests started to chant the Paternoster, saying "Amen" at the point now known as Amen Corner Bread Street was so known today because it was there that bread used to be sold.

Limehouse and London's Chinatown, about which so much was heard, were disappointing. London's Chinatown was put "in the shade" by Vancouver's.

London's rule of the road to the left the speaker accounted for through the fact that everything the Englishman of old used to do was in the light of fighting or self-protection. Even the coats of armor were designed to specially protect the left side, leaving the right free for fighting. So London had learned to travel with the left side to the wall and had seen no reason to change no matter what the rest of the world might do.

The speaker told of attending the annual Cambridge-Oxford rowing classic and the Derby. He had been possibly more interested in the nature of the cowds than in the acutal contests. In the Derby was a horse owned by O. Besner. He had also taken an intense interest in hearing the "soap box" speeches on varieties of subjects and without restriction of a Sunday afternoon in Hyde Park.

The old inns of England were losing much of their former charm, the speaker said. Controlled today by the big brewing concerns, they were rapidly becoming mere commercial enterprises. Graduation exercises for the lads at Eton and Harrow had been seen. The headwear of the boys for the occasion seemed very strange to a visitor.

The trooping of the colors on June 3, the King's Birthday, and the Aldershot Tattoo had been very impressive and the speaker described incidents and impressions of both.

Col. Johnston told of attending a Canadian Club banquet in London at which the speaker had been Rt. Hon. Austin Chamberlain who had talked of the Imperial Conference in Ottawa. A Fish Mongers' banquet was another interesting gathering which had proven to be a most elaborate affair where court dress and decorations were demanded of all. The guests had included General Gough.

An interesting sidelight was the holding of a "Buy British" campaign in Denmark.

T. W. Brown, president of the club, was in the chair and extended to Col. Johnston, on behalf of the members of the Gyro Club, a hearty vote of appreciation for a discourse which had been of outstanding interest to all.

There was a 100% attendance at the luncheon of members of the club who are in the city. Guests, in addition to Col. Johnston, were C. V. Evitt and G. P. Tinker. C. Wilbur Dawson was welcomed as a new member of the club.
