GRAND HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Well Known Workingmen's Hostel Taken over by George Broderius.

Owing to other business interests in the south Mr. John Goodman has sold out his business at the Grand Hotel to George Broderius who now assumes the proprietorship.

Mr. Broderius is well known among the patrons of the hotel, as for a long time he has been running the restaurant adjoining the hotel. He is a very popular among his friends and a good business man, and under his proprietorship the Grand Hotel will undoubtedly continue to progress.

Mr. Goodman is leaving this week on a trip to the Islands to look after some of his property interests there, and will return to the city to wind up his affairs before leaving for the south.

SMALL FIRE SATURDAY

Basement of Skandia Hotel Ignited by Hot Stove Pipe

About midnight on Saturday night fire broke out in the basement of the Skandia Hotel, Fulton street and Eighth avenue. The brigade promptly turned out, and the fire whistle was sounded. The outbreak which was caused by an overheated stove pipe was promptly quelled. Although the hour was late, the number of people aroused by the whistle gathered about the scene.

JAPS SCRAP AGAIN

Scratch and Bite. Use Bottle and Knife

Last night Provincial Chief Constable Owens assisted by City Constable McArthur took charge of two Japs who had fallen out at the Cassiar Cannery. One Oriental banged the other on the head with a bottle. The "bottled" one drew a knife. The men closed and there was all kinds of fun going for a minute. Fortunately the knife was not used, but scratches on the men were caused by their teeth and nails. Summed up briefly the situation is that one Jap was "Bottled" while the other one was "Canned." Both are now in the Jug.

Non-Members of Longshoremens' Union Turned Off Job

Difficulty in finding men for the unloading of the British Empire at the wharf this morning led the foreman stevedore to engage some men who were not members of the Longshoremen's Union. Secretary Morse of the P. R. I. A. who was in the neighborhood was apprised of the situation and the non-union men were ordered off the job. There was no disturbance of any kind though a small crowd of men gathered about the ship's side.
