ODD HANDS OF BRIDGE

EDMONTON, Aug. 25: (CP)—One in 50,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000, 000,000,000, 000,000,000,000, 000,000,000,000,000—or, more briefly, five with 67 ciphers after it—are the chances of getting the freak hands dealt four Edmonton bridge players the other day.

University of Alberta mathematicians studied the permutations and combinations behind the deal and produced odds worthy of a daily double.

The players were W. W. Bridge, S. C. McLeod, W. Gunn and R. St. Denis.

Bridge received the ace, king, nine and five of clubs; McLeod the same cards in diamonds, Gunn the same in hearts and St. Denis the same in spades.

Bridge got the jack, seven and three of hearts; McLeod the same three in spades, Gunn in clubs and St. Denis in diamonds.

Bridge was dealt the queen, eight and four of diamonds, McLeod the identical values in hearts, Gunnin spades and St. Denis in clubs.

Finally each received the 10, six and two in different suites. When they picked up these hands in billion billions, they found they each had cards numbering consecutively from two to the ace in different suits all round.

Miss Evy Rivett sailed Saturday night on the Cardena for a holiday trip to Vancouver.
