EXPECTING OPPOSITION

Manager Jimmie Seed of Charlton Athletic Issues Business First Rule for North American Trip

LONDON, May 7: (CP) — Members of Charlton Athletic Football Club are taking their forthcoming tour of the United States and Canada seriously. The tour, starting in New York May 30, and ending at Montreal June 30, is being sponsored jointly by the Dominion of Canada and the United States football associations.

"We are not expecting to coast through an easy series, by any means," declared Jimmie Seed, famous pilot of the colorful London Club. "I have made inquiries from managers who have taken teams to Canada and the United States and have learned we can expect tough competition."

While the Charlton management regards the trip as a reward for the team's remarkable achievement in advancing from the third division of the English League to the front rank of the major clubs in three years, it will not be all pleasure.

"I have impressed on the players they must first win the game," said Seed. "They understand it is to be a business-before-pleasure trip."

Officialy secretary-manager of the club, but unofficially coach, brains, psychologist and a great many other things, the one-time international is largely responsible for Charlton's success and holds credit for its great defensive system.

Seed, who during his playing career wore the colors of Sunderland, Tottenham Hotspurs and Sheffield Wednesday, plans to use his "cover-up" system in all tough matches. "I was told one time by Alex James, Arsenal star, that I had a good goalkeeper and my reply was: 'Yes, I have 11 goalkeepers.' And that's the secret of our success—that and the fact that we have been developing younger players."

Products of Whitburn

The town of Whitburn, Durham County, gave Charlton its trainer, Jimmie Trotter, in addition to the manager. The pair played together for Whitburn and a dressing-room conversation one day ran something like this:

Seed: "I'm going to be a manager one day."

Trotter: "I'm going to be a trainer."

Seed: "You can train my team then."

The dream team of the Whitburn dressing-room has become the first division Charlton Athletic. Oddly enough the town also developed Jack Smith, who piloted the last football association team to visit Canada.

Albert Gliksten, chairman of the Athletic, will accompany the squad to New York. It cost Albert and his brother Stanley, $350,000 to gain control of the club a few months ago. A wealthy timber merchant, Gliksten has business interests in Canada and the United States. David H. Clark, a director for 12 years and Dr. G. B. Montgomery soccer supporter, will also make the trip.

Thirteen matches are scheduled seven in Canada and six in the United States, but it is possible additional games may be arranged when the club reaches the Dominion.
