Salvation Army Red Shield Work

Performing Valuable Function both at Home and Abroad in Connection with War

The Red Shield organization of the Salvation Army is doing valuable work in connection with the war both at home and abroad. Primarily, the function is to make life more comfortable for those engaged in service with His Majesty's forces such as operating canteens, staging entertainments etc. Here in Prince Rupert soldier's socks are being darned and a reading room for men in service will probably be opened early in the year. The Army here is putting on monthly entertainments in aid of the Red Shield work.

SPORT CHAT

Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, divided by two points, are still the pace-makers in the National Hockey League but the New York Rangers and Boston Bruins are pulling up after a bad start and are close on the heels of the two Canadian aggregations. Both the Rangers and Bruins bettered their positions on week-end play, now being in third and fourth place respectively. The single scheduled game tonight will bring together at Boston the Bruins and the New York Americans. The Amerks continue to have little competition for the privilege of dwelling in the basement.

Designed to assist in small arms training of troops of the Canadian Active Service Force, cadets in schools and universities and members of civilian rifle clubs, an enlarged program of competitive events will be carried out this winter by the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association. Col. R. J. Birthwhistle, association secretary, said the organization, with the approval of the National Defence Department, would conduct decentralized competitions in small arms training as an integral part of activities of the Canadian Active Service Force and among individuals who have not yet been called up for service.
