It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

Man in the Moon

Some people may be hurt on the Burma Road but nothing like the hurts caused by those who try to sing about the Road to Mandalay.

Eden was in Palestine. That is where we always thought it was.

Isn't it curious what a lot of different dialects those Irishmen have since they got themselves into uniform.

Fanny was thoroughly angry at her swimming teacher.

"That fresh thing!" she exclaimed. "After I won the race, he came to me and said, "My dear, you kept your end up magnificently!"

Teacher: "What is it that binds us together, sustains us and makes us even better than nature intended?"

Tommy: "Girdles."

The class was studying magnetism. "Robert," asked the professor, "how many natural magnets are there?"

"Two, sir," was the surprising answer.

"And will you please name them?"

"Blondes and brunettes, sir."

"No, sah," explained the colored lady to the doctor. "Ah ain't nevah been x-rayed but Ah has been lately ultraviolated."

The infant of the household was in its cradle. The head of the house was at home, peevish and fault-finding. At length he became unendurable.

"You've done nothing but make mistakes tonight," he growled.

"Yes," she answered meekly, "I began by putting the wrong baby to bed."

"Remember, my boy," said the elderly relative, sententiously, "that wealth doesn't bring happiness."

"I don't expect it to," answered the young man. "I merely want it so that I may be able to choose the kind of misery that is most agreeable to me."

SPORT CHAT

Two South London soccer teams were ordered from the field by the referee in a recent match for the first time in the history of the Football Association. When a penalty was given against Millwall, playing at Crystal Palace, the visitors disputed the decision and one of the Millwall players twice kicked the ball away from the penalty spot. The crowd of 2,500 joined in the argument and the referee ordered J. R. Smith, Millwall's international captain, off the field. He refused to go. Both teams were sent to their dressing rooms where the referee talked with the players. Five minutes later the game resumed with Smith on the sidelines. Another penalty enabled Crystal Palace to score the odd goal in three, ending Millwall's unbeaten record.

To provide soccer recreation for war workers whose only free day is Sunday, the Football Association has relaxed partially its rule forbidding Sabbath play. During the war, works clubs, which cannot play other days, may now arrange interdepartmental and friendly matches on Sundays. The following conditions must be observed: 1. Permission to play must be obtained from the county association with which the club is affiliated. 2. The club must satisfy the county association that they cannot play on any other day of the week. 3. The teams must be restricted to members of the club. 4. No gate receipts may be collected.

Serious Situation is Facing Halibut and Salmon Industry—Bird Hunting Season in This District Opens

A serious situation is threatening the British Columbia fishing industry by reason of the refusal of the British Ministry of Food to issue import permits for frozen salmon and halibut into England. Large quantities of these fish have already been packed on definite orders from British importers and are now in Canada awaiting shipment. Unless these permits are granted without delay, difficulties will arise in finding refrigerator space for the handling of these shipments. And, if the permits are refused indefinitely, the producers will face a disastrous loss since there is no market in Canada for the quantity of frozen salmon and halibut packed this year in British Columbia. These fish were produced on orders from British importers. As a matter of fact, the orders placed were greater than was possible to fill. There seems to be no clear reason why import licenses for the shipping of these frozen fish have been held back but rumors current on this side of the water hint at some sort of a British fish trade "cartel" which is interested in developing business with Iceland at the expense of Canada.

Capt. Paul Armour, manager of the Armour Salvage Co., arrived in the city on the Princess Adelaide yesterday afternoon from Vancouver on business in connection with his local marine affairs.

Having been delayed by heavy freights for waypoints, Union steamer Cardena, Capt. John Boden, is not due in port until 3 o'clock this afternoon from the south. She will sail three hours later on her return south.

With this week-end, the bird hunting season in the immediate vicinity of Prince Rupert opens. In the northern district the bird season has already been open for the past few weeks but the game, owing to the open weather, has not been very abundant as yet. With hunting about to become legal in more accessible quarters, it is expected more parties will now be heading forth.

The Naas River area, after having been reopened to gillnetting and trolling for salmon during the past week, there having however been no fishing activity in spite of the opportunity, has now been finally closed to all types of salmon fishing for the season.

Judgment for the plaintiff has been given by Judge W. E. Fisher in County Court in a case in which Thomas H. Payne sued the Esperanza Mines Ltd. of Alice Arm for wages. W. O. Fulton acted as counsel for the plaintiff.

ACTION AND DRAMA TOO

"Shooting High" and "I Was an Adventuress" Featured at Capitol Theatre This Afternoon and Evening

"Shooting High," a fast-moving action romance of the western range featuring Jane Withers and Gene Autry, and "I Was an Adventuress," a romantic drama with Zorina in her first moving picture role and Richard Greene, comprise tonight's double bill program at the Capitol Theatre.

There is plenty of riding and shooting in "Shooting High" as Jane Withers and Gene Autry strive to corral a desperate band of bank robbers, break up a family feud and arrange a love match. There are also five tuneful melodies sprinkled through the story—"Only Once in a Lifetime," "Little Old Band of Gold," "Shanty of Dreams," "Wanderers" and "On the Rancho With My Pancho."

"I Was an Adventuress" is set against a panorama of smart Continental backgrounds through a web of intrigue is woven as the lavishly gowned and bejewelled Zorina glides through a sophisticated career. Green has the romantic lead while Erich von Stronheim is seen as a suave, relentless Paris swindler and Peter Lorre as one of his confederates. While Zorina ensnares the men, von Stroheim and Lorre fleece them. Sig Rumann and Fritz Feld are also important members of the cast in a story which has a surprise ending.

AMERICAN REACTION

Acting City Commissioner Quotes From Lawrence Hunt Regarding Aattitude To War

Acting City Commissioner J. W. Matheson at the Rotary Club Thursday afternoon gave members and visitors a picture of American reactions to the war with a summary by Lawrence Hunt in which the German propaganda in that country was analalzed and many of the arguments for remaining out of the war refuted.

"With all our faults, we Americans have a great faith in certain ideals—a faith that has moved mountains and has contributed mightily to our greatness as a nation. When Woodrow Wilson struck the moral note, the heart of America responded. Most Americans did believe that we were fighting "to make the world safe for democracy." Whether we succeeded or failed is irrelevant at this point. We did fight for something worth fighting for and we need feel no regret or shame for that motive and purpose.

"Somewhat allied to the foregoing reason were our national heritage and traditions. English people, French people and American people believe in their hearts that individual freedom is one of those few things worth fighting for and, if need be, worth dying for.

"The German ideal in the last war, as in the present one, was different, and—what is important for us to bear in mind—really endangered our ideal then as it does today. Despite all the effusions of Nazi-Communist philosphy, of flabby intellectuals, and of demagogic politicians, materialism is not the only driving force in American life. It wasn't in 1917 and it isn't now.

Self-Delusion

"Perhaps the loviest self-delusion we are enjoying at the moment is the picture of America acting as a sweet holier-than-thou peacemaker when the war ends," said Hunt. "We will be happy, comfortable and "disinterested." Our former associates will have gone through the hell of a war they desperately tried to avoid. They will be suffering, poor and tired out. Therefore we can do some more preaching, tell them what sort of peace they should make (not too harsh on the Germans because they are "a proud race") and how they must behave if they are to be like us.

"Wait a minute. Suppose the Nazi-Communists win? Well, brothers and sisters, if that happens we'll have to do an awful lot more than preach.

"If the Allies win without our aid, by what right will we have a voice in the peace terms? What will have been America's contribution? A few cheers, lots of "moral support' and goods for cash down. Again, I say, don't let the propagandists fool us. Let's not fool ourselves. We should at least be too adult for that."

This is a good time to sell that odd piece of furniture. Spend half a dollar on a "for sale" advertisement. (tf)
