150 Dry Dock Men Receive Army Calls

About 150 men at the dry dock have been ordered to report for military duty as a result of a comprehensive National Selective Service survey held in April, the Daily News learned today. The men will not be required to report for service all at once but will be released in small numbers throughout the remainder of the year so their movement will not dislocate dry dock production.

The men affected were described as "probable replaceables." Key men who cannot be replaced will be allowed to remain under deferment.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

(By Dorothy Garbutt)

Mrs. Miller has returned south and to say I'm missing her is putting it mildly. It was the first time since coming to Prince Rupert that I have had so long a visit with someone in my own particular organization or have had a "girl friend" to chum around with. It has been very nice and we have got all our necessary business attended to and had time over for getting around. And how we got around. Hmm! Hmm!

Two years or more ago I met one of the Coast Battery boys, you know, that group of boys who just seem to never get drafted — not that they don't want to, but once at Barrett always at Barrett. He was a particular friend of Bill Ross and his wife who were stationed up here at the time—and now after all this time I learned just by accident that he has had a most colorful and interesting life. But being one of these strong, silent type of men you'd never guess it. Born in Norway he came over to Canada when quite a youngster — although not too young to have lost a little Norwegian twist to his words when he does talk. He soon joined the famous Arctic Patrol of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and for a long time was stationed at Dawson and Old Crow, of all places, in the Yukon Territory. While there he was in the same RCMP detachment as Corporal Pyper who is now with the RCMP in Rupert so they have between them a grand fund of yarns of the times when men were men and women had never heard of painted stockings. Charlie—oh by the way his name is Bombardier Charles Ellingsen—was also in the first of these series of wars we've been having the past quarter century or so as well as doing his bit in this one. Stout fella, Charles!

This Sunday, at the Capitol the Port Edward Special Services Division is putting on their "G.I. Review." And it's good, so get your tickets early.

Two sergeants were in to see if I could find a room for them. They are out on subsistence and have been living in the Salvation Army Hostel for some time. But as it is really only for transient guests they feel they would like something more permanent. They say they can get their own cots and bedding, so very little if any furniture is needed. They are out all day, do not need their meals and are often on duty at night. So if anyone can offer them a room please telephone me at the Y.

LOVE STORY IS UNUSUAL

"In Our Time," an unusual love story starring Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid, comes to the Capitol Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Ida Lupino is a young girl who meets a Polish count, played by Paul Henreid, in a small antique shop in Warsaw. They fall in love and no matter how his family objects, he is determined to marry her. The couple is happy, despite the obvious hostility of his old-fashioned family. Their estate is neglected and they have plans to make it pay. But the war breaks out and destroys all their careful planning. The young husband has to leave for the front. Left alone she carries on as best as she can until he comes home wounded. The enemy is nearing and his family plans to escape, but the young couple stays to fight the invading Germans to the end.

Nancy Coleman is a haughty, aristocratic girl. Nazimova returns to the screen as the mother of the young Count. Also featured are Mary Boland and Victor Francen.

St. Peter's W.A. Tea Is Success

The home of Mrs. J. W. Moorehouse, Eighth Avenue East, was a centre of attraction Thursday afternoon, when the annual June tea of St. Peter's Church, Women's Auxiliary, was held. It proved very successful both socially as well as financially.

The weather was favorable and many ladies called during the afternoon, being received by Mrs. Wm. Garlick, president of the Women's Auxiliary, and Mrs. Moorehouse.

There was a fine display of home cooking, in charge of Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. D. Sievert, which was taken advantage of, and moved very quickly.

Mrs. Henderson was in charge of varieties which consisted of articles made by the members—lavender bags sold rapidly, these having been made and donated by the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, under the leadership of Mrs. Henderson.

The serviteurs were Mrs. David Deane and Mrs. Wm. Adolph. In the kitchen were Mrs. A. Hill-Tout, Mrs. Caddick and Mrs. H. V. Tattersall.

Mrs. A. J. Croxford was cashier.
