possesses possibly the world's most tightly organized business community. It takes a sharp Canadian to crack it. But once inside—zowie!

Once inside, the sky's the limit. Allowing for high-pressure hyperbole, that's what they say in commercial circles these days as a once conservative country sheds its trading inhibitions and starts casting around, for novelties.

Over the years, Canadian trade with France has been concentrated upon a few big items. Such things as wheat, pulp, nickel, synthetic rubber! and asbestos accounted for some MOVIE COLUMN 85 per cent of Canadian ship-
