"GREENWICH" COLORFUL

Gay and Tunesome Musical Comedy Coming to Capitol Theatre

"Greenwich Village," starring Carmen Miranda, Don Ameche and William Bendix, which comes to the Capitol Theatre here this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, dips deeply into the colorful melting pot of the village to recapture its spirit, legend and weird conglomerate of character which made the village a fascinating hot spot in the twenties. The film concerns itself with the gay and dramatic intimacies of the village's human cross-section. The plot is gay and the music glittering.

Don Ameche portrays a young serious musician who comes from the plains of Kansas in the hope of geeting an audition for a concerto which he has composed. The actor is thus given a vehicle for his musical and singing talents. Carmen Miranda has a full-fledged comedienne role as a decorative singer and dancer. William Bendix is a big-hearted speak-easy operator. Vivian Blaine, a new singing start, is introduced.

Frank Gill, Lloyds surveyor, arrived in the city on the Prince Rupert this morning from Vancouver, being here on official business at the local dry dock.

PRINCE RUPERT-BUILT SHIP SUNK

Ldg. Smn. Austin Jones, St. Lambert, P.Q., prevented an underwater explosion by removing the primer from a depth charge before abandoning ship.

Engine Room Artificer Arthur Mountain, Toronto, when he reached the deck with his lifejacket, ready to go over the side, saw that some of the men on deck had no lifejackets. He went back down to his messdeck and brought up two jackets for them.

But the prize tale of the survivors, told with relish, was that of Stoker George St. Amour, Montreal, and his pipe. St. Amour, who had taken time to cut loose a number of Carley floats, remembered as he was stepping over the side that he had forgotten his pipe. Back he went to the messdeck, unlocked his small attache case, got the pipe, climbed back to the deck and jumped.

"Well, it was a very good pipe that I'd paid $12.50 for in Boston," St. Amour declared.

Sub. Lieut. Graves raised some laughs when he jumped, wearing his officer's cap, and came up with the cap still on his head. He lost it later, though, on the floats. From the water Sub. Lieut. Graves saw what he thought was a periscope in the distance, under gunfire from one of the merchant ships.

At Sea For Very Few Hours

For two of the Clayoquot survivors, it was the "shortest draft" of their naval careers. A.B. Van cylan of Nassau, Bahamas, and Electrical Artificer Fred Peel of Edmonton had joined the ship only a few hours before she sailed on her last trip.

Engine Room Artificer Leslie Lott, Edmonton and Halifax, was surprised to find after he reached hospital that he'd been getting about on a broken leg.

Lott was injured in the engine room when the explosion knocked him down. He got his lifejacket and climbed the ladders to the upper deck and jumped into the water. In a Carley float his to loosen his boots. But he climbleg started to swell until he had ed the scramble net to the rescue ship, and in port made his way to another ladder and down the gangplank to an ambulance. Only in hospital did he find, after x-ray, that one of the bones in his right leg was broken.

Busiest man on the corvette was Sick Berth Attendant George Andrews, Windsor, Ont., who personally checked over each of the survivors for wounds or injuries, and helped find them dry clothing. The corvette men raided their kits and lockers for blankets and dry clothing for the survivors.

"Oldest hand" in time of service aboard the Bangor minesweeper was Stoker P.O. Ward Helm, Vancouver, who joined the ship when she was commissioned at Prince Rupert in August, 1941. Another veteran was Ldg. Smn. H. F. Howes, Calgary, who joined two weeks later.

H.M.C.S. Clayoquot, named after Clayoquot Inlet, a small bay on the B. C. coast, was the first warship built at Prince Rupert and carried on the wardroom bulkhead a plaque presented by the citizens of Prince Rupert. She was the "adopted ship of the I.O.D.E. branch at Vernon.

According to S.P.O. Helm, she was "the only Canadian warship to be commissioned at sea." It happened when she was on her acceptance trials at the west coast, he recalled, and the Navy took the ship over from the builders at sea, running up the White Ensign and lowering the merchant flag.

Clayoquot proceeded to the east coast in October, 1941 and most of her service since was in convoy escort duties in the northwest Atlantic. She was in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the summer of 1942 when submarine activity was at its height, and helped tow a torpedoed freighter. She was with the corvette H.M.C.S. Charlottetown when she was torpedoed and sunk, and picked up the 53 Charlottetown survivors.

In the summer of 1943 Clayoquot was one of the minesweepers which cleared the approaches to Halifax Harbor when a German minefield was laid, and was credited with an assist on one mine.

"She never lost a ship in convoy," S.P.O. Helm said. "She'd more than paid for herself."

In the spring of 1944 Clayoquot was attached for a time to H. M. C.S. Kings, officer training establishment at Halifax, for training purposes. After a summer refit, she went back to steady service, and had been busy in escort duties. She had been at sea 20 out of 23 days preceding her loss.
