Baby's teeth we mean. Give them thought before they appear—even before baby arrives. Good teeth start with the mother's diet . . . and through babyhood and childhood, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D are needed to build and maintain sound teeth.

Fishermen Leave Skeena Nets As Catches Shrink

Presumably prosperous as a result of one of the best sockeye fishing seasons in years, many Skeena River gillnetters are reported to be leaving the river while those who remained tallied up fair averages of pinks and sockeye last week.

Average catch of pinks for the week was 550 fish per boat while the sockeye catch was 100 fish per boat for the same period. Actually, however, the sockeye catch has dwindled to only a small proportion of what it was at the season's peak when boats were averaging better than 100 fish per day.

Termination of the cannery workers' strike in Vancouver last week eased the can situation on the Skeena. A delivery of cans was made to canneries there by the Catala on Sunday.

While the city carries out repairs, McBride Street between Fifth and Seventh Avenues is closed today, traffic being detoured.

Giant Fire V-J Night

Thousands of People Witnessed Celebrations—Service Centres Active

V-J night celebrations here were touched off with a giant bonfire in Fraser St. park and the shooting of skyrockets by Fire Chief Lock and his helpers.

Nearly 1,500 citizens who witnessed the spectacle were unanimous in the opinion that it was one of the best fireworks displays they had seen in quite a time.

The largest number of people the Y.M.C.A. building has yet accommodated — estimated at 10,000—spent part of V-J Day taking part in celebrations indoors because of the wet weather.

A great influx of service and civilian people into the "Y" began early in the evening immediately after the civic parade was over.

A thousand persons attended a community sing-song in the auditorium led by Don Forward, Y.M.C.A. supervisor, with Peter Lien at the piano. Feature of the program was the singing of three of their native songs by a group of 30 Russian merchant seamen who were in the audience.

In the upstairs rooms a bingo game was organized under the direction of Frank Guy Armitage and a ping-pong tournament was staged with Steward Johnny Sheflin, R.C.N.V.R., in charge.

The street dance was moved indoors to the auditorium and a large number of people danced to recorded music. Before the dance paper hats and noisemakers were distributed.

Big Parade In Spite of Rain

The street parade carried on bravely despite a driving rainstorm which raised havoc with floats and decorated vehicles including those of the youngsters many of whom had decked out bicycles, wagons and doll carriages. The parade was led by an Army jeep in which rode Mayor H. M. Daggett. Three bands took part—the United States Army, Sea Cadets and Aiyansh concert band which came in from a Skeena River cannery. Cheering school children were marshalled by Principals W. W. C. O'Neill and S. A. Cheeseman. Included among the marchers were Women of the Canadian Legion, Girl Guides, Sea Cadets, seamen from the Russian freighter Scala, Sons of Norway, Chinese Patriotic Association. Represented in the decorated cars and floats were the Women's Canadian Club (Mrs. N. E. Arnold, president), Chinese Patriotic Association, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, Prince Rupert Dry Dock and Shipyard, Canadian Legion, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire and Prince Rupert Gyro Club.

A mock trial of Mussolini, Hitler and Tojo on a stand in front of the Post Office after the parade excited considerable amusement. This was arranged by William Jarmson and the comically arrayed court principles were Judge Bob Herrick, Prosecutor Stewart Johnson and Defender Stewart Carson. Speedy justice was meted out to the dictators. Dummies were strung up on gallows and later burned in effigy at the Fraser Street bonfire.

Thanksgiving Service and Military Parade

The morning observance of the day included a solemn service of Thanksgiving in the YMCA auditorium where 1000 persons gathered. Mayor Daggett opened the service. T. D. Pattullo, M.L.A., spoke briefly. Bishop J. B. Gibson led the service with Rev. M. B. Anderson, Rev. J. J. Smithson and Rev. John Linney also taking part. A composite military band, under the baton of Sergeant Peter Lien of the Prince Rupert Regiment, provided the music. Standardbearers of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, lent color to the stage background.

A long parade in which the United States Army, Canadian Navy, Army and Air Force including women's as well as men's services took part followed the service. Also in the parade were veterans of both great wars who received the cheers of the crowds as they swung by in the procession.

The impronptu celebration on Tuesday night in the streets was marked by the parading and dancing of cheering crowds, careening of honking cars, the streets being crowded with happy throngs taking part in informal jubilation.

Service Centres Were All Busy

All in all, it was a large day for the "Y" staff members such as Bruce McIntyre, program director; Mrs. Ferguson, hostess, and Dorothy Ashcroft, at the information desk, and the other staff members and canteen workers who labored to make V-J Day a memorable one for Prince Rupert.

The Salvation Army canteen attracted large crowds both for dinner and supper while unusually large numbers were also at the U.S.O., the American Seamen's Club and the K. of C. hut.

At the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Christian Association the usual Wednesday night Bible discussion group convened.

HOME FROM OVERSEAS — Gunner Don Blake, son of H. M. Blake, 216 Seventh Avenue West, arrived home on Tuesday night's train from Edmonton where he stopped over on his way home after five years' service overseas. He arrived in Canada recently on the Ile de France.

SERVICE CENTRE HERE IS CLOSED

Instructions to close the Lutheran service centre in Prince Rupert in about one week have been received by Rev. Magnus B. Anderson, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, who is soon to be transferred to a parish in Patterson, California.

The move will eliminate the only service club in Canada operated by the Lutheran Commission, which has its headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn., and maintains scores of similar centres in the United States.

During the more than two years it has operated, the service centre has built up a good reputation and was noted for its policy of allowing kitchen privileges to all who desired it. Scarcely an evening has passed that some servicemen or women were not cooking their own supper at the club.

Last night's smorsgasbord dinner, therefore, was probably the last one that will be held for members of the forces in the Lutheran church's basement.

Although the club's guest book was not started until a year after the centre opened, hundreds of service personnel signed it from May 12, 1944, until V-J Day. The first name in the book is Kermit J. Ogdahl, Chance, South Dakota, of Acropolis Hill, while on J-V- Day the register was signed by George H. Fry, Hillcrest, Alta.

Among the names in the book is one "Adolf Schicklegruber," which goes to prove that Argentina has no monopoly on starting rumors regarding the whereabouts of the former German chancellor.

FISH WORKERS GIVEN CHARTER

A charter making it an autonomous local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union was granted to the Prince Rupert branch of the U.F.A.W.U. at a meeting Monday night in the Fishermen's Hall. Previously Prince Rupert members, numbering 150, had been a branch of the Vancouver local.

The charter was presented by Alex Gordon of Vancouver, business agent for the U.F.A.W.U., which is said to embrace several thousand fishing industry workers along the coast. The union is agent for all fishermen, fish dock workers and cannery workers on the coast exclusive of those under the jurisdiction of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. and the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union.

Executive of the new local, elected at last night's meeting, is:

President, T. Elliott.

Vice-president, George Viereck.

Secretary - treasurer, Stan Boshier.

An executive board will be elected from each of the plants at meetings in the future.

The new local, affiliated with A.F. of L., received congratulations of August Gronlund, president of the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council.

A report by Alex Gordon on the activity of the union during the last year was given at the meeting.
