SHIPS AND WATERFRONT

Following recent civil service examinations, an eligible list of fisheries inspectors for British Columbia has been set up. They will be given a training course of four or five months duration under the, direction of A. J. Whitmore, chief supervisor of fisheries.

Shortly before the ss. Cardena struck a reef near False Bay last week, a small passenger, Tommy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Shields, enroute to Tallheo, near Bella Coola, became suddenly ill. No doctor was available, and Tommy needed one. A physician met the rescue vessel, Chelohsin, and the boy was speeded to hospital for an operation at once. The lad's father had been unemployed and has just started work at Tallheo.

Halibut fishing was closed for the 1948 season from Northern California to the far northern Bering Sea at midnight July 11. Permits for retention and landing of halibut caught incidental to other species with set lines in any area became invalid at midnight November 15. The closing of fishing is the earliest in the history of the industry. H. H. Lokken, manager of the Fishing Vessel Owners' Association, says more small boats have been fishing for halibut in Alaska than ever before. The date for the opening of the next season has not been set but probably will be May 1, 1949.

Pacific Fisheries Commissions did some history making recently when the International Fisheries Commission and the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission both held meetings at Ottawa, says Trade News. It was the first time both had met in Ottawa at the same time. G. W. Nickerson of Prince Rupert was present as chairman of the Halibut Commission, as well as Olof Hanson of Vancouver. Highlights of the three day sitting included a conference with Premier King, a banquet at which Ray Atherton, U.S. ambassador to Canada was present. The dinner was tendered by Hon. Mr. Mayhew, minister of fisheries.

Capacity list of 106 passengers, all round trippers, were aboard Union Steamship Co.'s cruise ship Chilcotin, which was in port from 2 o'clock to 6 yesterday afternoon northbound from Vancouver to Ketchikan. The passengers were largely from United States with many from California but there were also several British Columbians including Miss Ina Anson, Miss Rowna Anson, Mrs. A. Caldwell, Mrs. Edith J. Clegg, Mr. and Mrs Ernest Dann, Miss Eleanor J. Ely, Mrs. Edna M. Fowlie, Mrs Isabella M. Frost, Mrs. Gertrude Gill, Mrs. Olive H. Horan, Master Robert Hunter, Mrs. A. R Laidlaw, Miss Pearl C. JACKPOT AT LANSDOWNE

VANCOUVER, (—Hasty Fleet, a 134 to 1 shot, yesterday scored the biggest upset in the current Lansdowne racing meet. Apprentice Jockey Marvin Moncrief rode the five-year old gelding home in a third race to pay the betters $260.50, by far the largest mutuel return of the meet.

Moncrief had ridden only two previous winners this year.

Duke of Edinburgh Qualified Stoker

LONDON (—The Duke of Edinburgh is a qualified stoker and has a certificate to prove it. Describing some of his wartime naval experiences to a Canada Club dinner, he recalled a voyage during which Chinese stokers deserted the ship. Officers and men were called on to take over. "We were all given a certificate stating we were qualified stokers," the Duke said. "I still have that certificate."

Sport Shots

A rain of seat cushions in Montreal's Delorimier Downs was seen by sports writers of that metropolis as a significant prelude to last week's discharge of Leo Durocher as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The cushions were hurled by outraged fans when the Dodgers, playing an exhibition game with their Montreal farm cub, saw fit to bench Jackie Robinson after the popular ex-Royal second baseman had made only one appearance at the plate for the Dodgers.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara, who claims Durocher telegraphed instructions from Brooklyn to pull Robinson, sees the incident as typical of the erratic handling of the Dodger line-up that brought about Leo's dismissal. "His strange manner of shuffling players, his indecision and, undoubtedly, his flouting of Montreal fandom, had a lot to do with the decision to get rid of him," writes Baz.

Admitting that Leo won't suffer financially by his transfer across the river to the New York Giant clubhouse, Baz still feels The Lip will lose plenty of prestige, no matter how the two clubs finish in the National League race. He points to a falling off in attendance at Ebbets Field, caused partly by the boycott thrown against the club by the Catholic Youth Organization after Durocher returned from a one-year suspension imposed by baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler for consorting with known gamblers. "Rickey gave him his chance to redeem himself," says Baz, "but he muffed it miserably."

Chorus Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll: "If you can believe what you hear (and you probably can), the only reason Branch Rickey reappointed Durocher as manager of the Dodgers this season was that he felt he had a responsibility to him. He was a hot potato and where else was he going to get a job in baseball? Of course, there is no need to feel sorry for Durocher, who managed to land on his feet. Yet only a few days ago when his job at Brooklyn was insecure, we heard it said that for years he escaped punishment for actions which could have caused his banishment from baseball. This year when he was behaving himself he was being blamed for everything."

MOTORS DEFEAT G. AND A. 14-6

General Motors moved up to join Canadian National Recreation Association in second position in the city fastball standings by defeating Gordon and Anderson by a score of 1 4to 6 in last night's league fixture at Gyro Park. G. and A. move back to share the cellar position with Co-op.

The game was a genuine upset for the hopeful G. and A. team which recently had been reinforced in the interests of league balance. The merchants surged forward in the opening innings with a power that inspired a major redistribution of playing strength among the General Motors team.

Key to the General Motors redistribution was the removal of Gordon Carlson from the mound in the fourth inning. Carlson walked four batters in the first inning allowing two hits as well, all of which occounted for four runs.

By the fourth inning, when the motormen shifted around, G and A. were leading 6-4. Bruce Simundson went on the rubber for General Motors and in the succeeding five innings he held the merchants to five hits.

Whatman, who pitched nine innings for G. and A., faced 51 batters, allowing 18 hits He struck out three batters and allowed one base on balls.

Carlson struck out three batters, allowed three hits and six bases on balls in three innings, while Simundson struck out one, gave up five hits and two bases on balls in five innings.

Steeplejack and Bridge Painter Invents Time-Saving Paint Brush

New Device Tested on New York's Triborough Bridge

A new dipless paint brush was recently demonstrated on the world-famous Triborough Bridge in New York City. This brush was demonstrated by its inventor, Russel C. Engren, steeplejack and bridge painter, who proved he could eliminate much of the time, energy and material wasted in painting.

This new brush puts gravity to work. The paint flows from a gravity-feed bucket through a light, flexible hose directly to bristles of the brush; a simple shut-off clip on hose gives complete control of the paint flow.

Actual tests in homes, farms, factories, under every working condition where paint is used, show an average saving of 38 per cent in time and paint. These tests were made by housewives as well as professional painters and contractors.

The inventor also claims that not only does the brush save time, but also saves wear and tear caused by cleaning of ordinary paint brushes.
