How About Wolf Fat For Rheumatic Pain?

Miami Man Thinks Saskatchewan Trappers Might be Interested

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., (—There's a brand new industry waiting to be attempted in northern Saskatchewan if a letter received by the Prince Albert Board of Trade is considered.

From Miami, Florida, has come the suggestion, fulfillment of which would aim at relieving such rheumatic and arthritis pains as survive in that southern region.

The writer says his suggestion may be a bit unusual.

"We are looking to contact some honest and reliable hunter who in his travels comes across some wolves and has of course the opportunity to shoot some of them and would be willing to extract any fat he could find on the carcass and sell same to us (raw or rendered)."

"Us" is A. Hiller, general manager of Quarterdeck Yacht Club, Miami.

He says his motive in writing is a recommendation he's received regarding wolf fat as a "very effective cure for rheumatic pains' etc." After testing a few pounds, he's sure "profitable arrangements could be established with northern trappers."

District authorities have listed three problems to be mastered in establishing such an industry:

Finding sufficient wolves; selecting the fat ones; making sure the fat will cure anything.

Mr. Hiller said he based his wolf fat hopes on "a Canadian citizen down here whom we trust implicitly."

CIVIC CENTRE ATTENDANCE IMPRESSIVE

Attendance and participation statistics at Prince Rupert's Civic Centre in 1948, as reported at the annual meeting of the Civic Centre Association last night, add up to some pretty impressive figures.

But although the use made of the building was described as highly satisfactory, a general feeling prevailed at the meet- that actual membership is not as high as it should be. But it is climbing.

Total membership last year was 1,1415, as compared with 1,083 in 1947. The increase was almost evenly divided between juniors and adults, the former hvaing increased to 709 from 503 and the latter to 706 from 580.

The main gymnasium was the heart of the building, both from the number of events and attendance. The meeting rooms contained a total of 1,312 events which drew an attendance of 28,029 persons, only slightly less than the auditorium which attracted 30,325 to its 287 presentations of various kinds.

Another popular spot was the small gymnasium, which in its first year, was the scene of 1,020 events which attracted 16,181 people.

The teen age games room drew 11,092 during the year and the public library was visited by 16,875. An estimated 17,500 admissions were registered at the carnival in August.

Along with other facilities the above-mentioned attracted 190,871 people, to 4,053 events. During the previous year, 174,656 people attended 2,344

Eighty-two organizations use the building during the year.

GOOD TASTE?
