Sport Shots

If you want to be a good basketball player, junior, keep your eyes on the nearest part of the rim and lay the ball up there just as easy as you can. That's the advice of easy Ed Macauley, the St. Louis University stringbean, who was the most popular choice on the 1949 All-American basketball team. He should know. His marksmanship average of .538 is one of the best, if not the best, in United States college basketball.

Macauley took time out to pass along a few pointers to youngsters who are having a rough time making the team. "I'd say shooting is about all practice," Ed said. "We're taught to keep our eyes on the closest part of the rim when shooting." An important thing is to make the shot just as soft as you can. That way, the basket will catch some of those that bounce around. "That goes for all shots, including free throws. Lay it up there easy."

How does he get away from the pressure that usually builds up before a big game? "I try to keep my mind off the game until we get in the dressing room," he said. "Relax. Listen to the radio. Otherwise you'll play the game nine times before you get on the floor."

Any special tips on diet and sleeping? "Regularity—that's the big secret," Macauley replied. "Eat plain food. Lay off pastries and things like that. On the day of a game eat a substantial breakfast. For the meal before a game, I usually have a steak, a baked potato, and a vegetable—but not too much. Then a dish of gelatin of fruit.'

Easy Ed's frail build and his ability to maintain his strength in this bruising sport has become somewhat of an athletic mystery. When you get that tired feeling on the court, remember his words of advice: "Do your resting while on offence. Don't loaf, but conserve your strength. You can never rest a minute on defence!"

And, when you become so expert at the game that the opponents put two guards on you, follow the method of St. Louis University's billikens and Ed Macauley: "Our team just starts moving the ball around fast," he said. "Move it fast enough, and you'll catch that extra man off guard. Do that, and a coach will find it impossible to put two men on one." Of course, Macauley is six-feet-eight and has unusual muscular co-ordination and poise. If you have these qualities, too—good. It'll help.

HOW CAN I ? ? ?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I make a polish for metal and glass?

A. An excellent polish can be made by mixing one part of wheat flour to five parts of potter's clay. Apply with a damp woolen cloth. This compound will also remove tar and grease from the glass and metal parts of an automobile.

Q. How can I give a pretty sheen to the hair?

A. If a half cup of vinegar is put in the rinsing water when washing the hair, it will soften it and give it a pretty sheen.
