BREATHEASY FOR ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER
BREATHEASY OF CANADA Ltd. Vancouver, BC.

Reminiscences and Reflections
By W.J.

Winter, with its "surly blasts" (from Rabbie Burns, by the way) is almost over and done with. Hail, jocund Spring! Know what "jocund" means? Well, we had to look the dashed thing up, in a pint sized dictionary, with part of the front cover torn off. This is the low-down, concerning jocund—gay, full of life, etc., etc. Used to feel that way ever so long ago. But anyway, the main point is Spring is just around that more or less legendary corner and it's quite O.K.

There's just one point about that real estate transaction on Third Avenue that causes one furiously to think. For about thirty years, disposal of those four admirable lots has always been, as a timely subject, a sort of oasis. Offering many angles and points of view—and never of minor importance—it had a preferred position. And now what? Once there was Cow Bay to turn to. Its potency and influence beckoned, but not now.

Packing home a pail of water used to be a common and very essential job in Prince Rupert when the men and women of today were young enough not to be so devilishly handsome. Sometimes it would be rainwater or a muskeg hole, or, a little later, fresh from a hydrant. Everyone could not posses the luxury of laundry service and footing it houseward (mainly on Washdays) with a couple of brimming buckets was a sizeable bit of business.

With another theatre in town it's going to look like old times, b'gosh. For some local precursors, stroking their whiskers, can recall when there was one on Rupert Road, three more on Second Avenue and one on Third. That made five.

Folks are again asking, now that construction of major business premises on Third Avenue will be under way ere long, why, when townsite plans were drawn, room was not allowed for a lane on the south side of Third Avenue, between Fulton and McBride Streets. That is Foolish Query No. 17,347. The time to have asked it was during the latter part of June, 1906.

Preferring a bedroom to a bank, in which to keep $40,000, a Toronto couple discovered it missing the other night. The fortune was in hard cash, too. It had been put in a shoe box. Perhaps it was their affectionate habit to take the mazuma to bed, placing it betwixt them, or tucking $20,000 under each pillow.

The Co-operative fishermen handled about fifteen million pounds of halibut and salmon during the year without anybody becoming excited or suggesting three cheers. For, be it remembered, that's a lot of sea food. Yet, during railway building days, when the late Charles M. Hays was not the only big shot, most folks had their doubts about plenty of things. Mr. Hays remarked one day the time would come when the new railway would haul as much as three or four cars of fish at one time and nothing but fish. And they gave him a mean look and perhaps felt like yawning.

LONDON (AP)—A hundred German children are to spend five to six years' experimental training in Britain by arrangement with the National Children's Home and Orphanage. Their ages are between eight and 13.

BOURTON - ON - THE - HILL Gloucestershire, England (AP) — About 1,000 German prisoners-of-war, last of the local camp, have been repatriated.
