SHORT SPORT

Aer Lingus, Eire's state-owned airways, will transport no more greyhounds to England until a more humane method of carrying them is devised. The airline ran 30 flights a week, shipping the dogs from Irish breeders to English trainers—but nearly 10 percent of the animals were either dead or in such bad condition that they had to be destroyed. Too-rapid ascents and descents and bumpy flying weather were blamed for the injuries. Experimental flights now are being carried on to find the best heights at which to fly the dogs. Test pilots report the high-strung greyhounds become hysterical at 4,000 feet and their lungs are in actual danger of bursting at 10,000 feet. At any intermediate height changes of pressure may alter a dog's track possibilities permanently. Pressure chambers—though expensive—may be only the solution to the problem.

Champagne flowed in Piccadilly Circus after the Fulham Munipal Football Club captured the Civic Service League Cup. Here's how the revelry started: The players, happily clutching their cup, were going down the escalator in Piccadilly underground station on their way home from the field of conquest. They met an unidentified couple on the way up, happily clutching a magnum of the finest. Conversation ensued. Upshot was that the wine-carriers emptied the bottle into the football trophy and players and bystanders passed it from hand to hand while the crowd grew denser by the minute.

* * *

Here's another champagne story, but without a happy ending yet: Sir William Cooke's colt, Happy Knight, won the 2,000 Guineas in 1946—and hasn't come home in front since. Last April 3 at Sandown, Sir William was so sure the losing sequence would end he bought a bottle of champagne to celebrate Happy Knight's impending victory. But an outsider, Ben Lomond, won and Happy Knight ran fourth. Sir William saved the bottle. Happy Knight was favored to win at Birmingham May 18. The bottle was in readiness. Ben Lomond was also entered. Ben Lomond won again. Happy Knight came second. Sir William Cooke is getting pretty thirsty.

CO-OP SWAMPS G. AND A. IN CITY FASTBALL

Co-op 23, G. and A. 6

Gordon and Anderson's team came their third cropper of the short fastball season at Gyro Park last night when they tangled with Co-op—and it was a very bad cropper indeed. When the ninth inning pandemonium cleared, the score teetered toward the Co-op side by the symbols 23 to 6.

Just what happened to the G. and A. pitcher crew is a matter for solemn discussion between Hurlers Moxley and Whatman and their manager when they recover their breath. Whatman, especially, may have a story to tell about poor field support.

Through some vagary of the Weatherman, Gordon and Anderson have been involved in three of the four games which have been played since the season opened on May 26 but it is hardly likely that the weather has had anything to do with the fact that they have lost all three.

Anyway, wet weather has forced postponment of two other games and, since the schedule continues without pausing for washed-out games, the furniture boys have entered the conflict for the last three consecutive times.

For Co-ops it was the first victory of the season. In the league opener they fell before C.N.R.A., by a score of 11 to 4.

At the start of last night's game, it looked as if Gordan and Anderson were going to get somewhere. In the second inning they clouted three hits off Co-op's pitcher Slater, two of them doubles. Whatman singled and Vic Dell doubled and both came home on a double by Cole who was left on base when the side retired.

Whatman, who started on the mound for Gordon and Anderson, could not be blamed for what happened to the team while Co-op was at bat in the second. The waterfront boys scored seven runs, not one of which originated with a hit. Four of the runners got their start on fielders' errors and thre on fielders' choice plays. But anyway, the damage was done.

In the third inning, Co-op scored four runs, then repeated the performance in the fourth. Moxley replaced Whatman on the mound for Gordon and Anderson in the fourth.

Moxley tightened up in the fifth, striking out two men, while the third man went out on an infield hit. In the sixth, however, Co-op garnered three runs off six hits—two of them doubles and one a triple. Co-op scored three more runs off four hits in the seventh. They marked up one run in each of the eighth and ninth innings.

The Gordon and Anderson team was hitting fairly regularly but their progress was sadly impeded by fairly efficient Co-op fielding.

Slater, who pitched the first four innings for Co-op, allowed seven hits and struck out four, while Kellett, who hurled the final five innings, allowed eight hits and struck out nine. He walked one.

Whatman allowed seven hits and struck out one in three innings, while Moxley in six innings gave 14 hits, struck out six and walked eight.
