Can someone tell me about tape-recorders? No . . ? Well, up until a few days ago I knew less than nothing about them and, frankly, wasn't too interested. But — things have changed as we had occasion to use one around our house. Now, ask me and you'll find an enthused advocate, especially for the Loewe-Opta Optacord from RUPERT RADIO & ELEC-TRIC. It's a dandy and as Bert says, "It's the most completely versatile machine on the market." It operates on 110 or 220 volt outlet; it can be used from your car battery; in your boat or operated from self-contained batteries on the beach. It has volume and tone control and a stroboscope. That's a gadget that tells you when you're recording properly, speed, volume and so on. I've forgotten hów many feet Bert said there were in each tape, but I know that I was amazed at the time. Imagine being able to record children's voices and then hearing them 10, 15 years later. The case for the Optacord is black and grey, most compact, and Bert or Tona will be pleased to show you this machine at Rupert Radio and Electric.

Remember, two-three weeks ago, one of the Vancouver papers had a write-up on an interview with a famous hair stylist who had attended and lectured at the Fashion Show at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre. What was that man's name? Nicholas? Antoine? Oh well, he said, in part, that it is not only every women's privilege, to change the color of her hair every so often, it is also her duty. It not only enhances the appearance of the hair but it gives a definite lift to a woman's personality and a new outlook on life. Most of all, this man urged women to have their hair properly shaped and cut by a professional. Where can all this be done in Rupert?

help and advice. During the next few weeks you'll want to make your appointment for your perm in order to have your hair nice for Christmas. The number to call is 5134, Modern Beauty Salon. Ask for Jeri, then you'll be assured of complements, not as my daughter once said, after a home rinse experiment, "Mummy, what happened to your hair?" .

At MODERN BEAUTY SALON, of course, and

Sh-sh-sh-don't tell a soul-but I've heard on good authority that we're in for a cold winter, and it's well to be prepared as CAROL-LEE's shop is. Carol's winter stock of Lennard's snuggies and vests is complete and the sizes range from small to outsize. These garments are smooth fitting, 25 to 50 percent wool blended with combed cotton. Oh say, when you're downtown looking for a new skirt, make Carol-Lee's your very first stop. Carol or Elna will show you smart cashmeres by Val Hughes; Blin and Blin skirts; reversible pleateds, slim sheaths and 'the new tweeds. And—blouses by the dozens, lustrous cottons, pure silks, terylenes, jerseys and broadcloths, in any style you prefer. Are the fall and winter hats in? I should say that they are and more charming hats you have NEVER seen.

It's easy to tell—this season has been designed for the folks who like to work at a hobby and the Hobbyist's Supply House is PRINCE RUPERT FLORISTS. I was in today to see Mrs. Olsen and was quite taken with the Mary Maxim rug kits. Fascinating—handwork that can be taken up at any minute, row now and then. The designs, numerous and varied, are stamped on canvas backing and the six-ply wool is precut. You can buy it all at once or as you use it. More news from Rupert Florists—pert and pretty Mary Maxim hat kits will soon be in and Mrs. Olsen has the wool and patterns right now for the quick-knit cheery Santa Socks. Have you seen Mary Maxim "Thick 'n' Thin" tweed effect 100 per cent wool for bulky sweaters? It's different and knits up to quite spectacular sweaters. Have you remembered your garden bulbs this fall? You'll find every variety of Dutch imported bulbs at the Prince Rupert Florists.

When I called in to SALLY SHOP this week I remarked to Georgie that never had the shop seemed so full of merchandise. It's positively bulging! and what's more Sally's has a sale on now, too. Imagine, polished cotton blouses at $2.77 each or two for five dollars. These are clean, precise patterned toppers and ideal for work. Then Georgie also has flannelette nightwear, all kinds for two for five dollars; slips at two for five and hear this: seamless nylons, two for one dollar. Any skirts and sweaters—you ask—?? well, there are racks and racks and racks to choose from at Sally Shop and the stock of Christmas frocks is coming in each day.

Every morning on my way to work this week I've stopped to admire the window at WRATHALL'S. It's full of gift suggestions, you know the kind that make delightful sock fillers or different little surprises for party prizes. One that especially caught my eye was a posie bowl of roses with plastic picks for pickles and canapes. Then, unique shape salt and pepper shakers, a set of four fat fishy ash trays; manicure sets; a tiny sewing case; a family tree; a Royal stagecoach model set and there's more and more and more. Just in now at Wrathall's, picture frames, all sizes, all shapes, all styles; and European Christmas cards from West Germany, Holland, Denmark, England, that so many folks have been asking about, and the new season series of paint by number sets. That's at Wrathall's and the girls will be pleased to help you.

Do you know, I don't have a basket chair in my house, but this week I wished we did have one when I saw the Contessa basket chair covers at MACKENZIE'S. They ARE really nice and instantly change a homely, uncomfortable chair into an attractive, restful one. These covers are styled by Toby, are filled with thick foam rubber that is completely washable, and are elasticized for easy slip-on wrinkle free fit, in either plain or patterned corduroy. Have you seen the colonial chesterfield in MacKenzie's window? It's a beauty and what I particularly liked about it was the high back style. These back cushions are terelyene filled for superb comfort. It is a roomy suite, finished in rich tapestry brocade, in your own color choice and it has a skirt all around the bottom. See it at MacKenzie's and ask about the decorator cushions while you're in the store. They come in all sizes, shapes and colors.

Mummy, WHERE are the bandaids? It seems that either Dougle or Carol are always asking for them, From now on when one of the kids have a cut finger I'll have no excuse because LANGFORD'S PHARMACY sale is on and bandaids are just one of the many, many bargains. Hear more: Aspirin, regularly 93 cents now 67 cents; Kleenex tissue are four for 99 cents; Peroxide two for 25 cents; Tonl perms, regular, gentle or super regularly $2 now $1,47. It would be easy to list more but you should call in to see for yourself. Don't miss the specials on hair dryers, heating pads and outdoor Christmas tree lights. Who knows, perhaps you'll be the lucky winner of the door prize at Langford's. It's a big as life, four foot high black and white panda bear.

This week I have three originals to tell you about from GORDON & ANDERSON and they are definitely something to be excited about. First: For elegant dining you must see the toned eeru, hand painted, Nottingham lace cloths. Min has them in various sizes. They're exquisite and a perfect
