SUGAR EXPORTS

DURBAN, South Africa (CP) — The first sugar shipment to leave South Africa in more than two years was loaded here. Shipments had been halted because of reduced crops owing to drought, but acreage under sugar cane now has been increased from 350,000 to more than 500,000 and there is a surplus for export.

have Nelson seat opened up, and won.

Strange Flip-Flop

One of the strangest flip-flops came that year. Dr. K. C. MacDonald had won for the Liberals in North Okanagan. Premier Oliver mate him provincial secretary. Back he went to the people. He was beaten by Conservative A. O. Cochrane. The Liberal jig's up, said the Conservatives. But came 1927 and the Conservatives were flustered when A. Wells Gray, in a by-election, held New Westminster for the Liberals. It was all very confusing. Was the Liberal jig up, or wasn't it? At the same time, in 1927, Gray was holding New Westminster for the Liberals, Conservative W. F. Kennedy was beating Liberal Dr. MacDonald in North Okanagan. It made no sense!

However, it was curtains for the Liberals in 1928. Out they went, and it was in for the Conservatives.

In 1933 the Pattullo Liberals won hands-down. Next summer there was a by-election in North Vancouver. CCF Harry Anderson had died. The Liberals wanted that seat—were sure they'd get it. But Mrs. Dolly Steeves won for the CCF.

A Victoria correspondent for a Vancouver newspaper wrote: "On the surface the Pattullo government took the results of the North Vancouver by-election, its first major reverse, philosophically, but the vote came as a staggering surprise. It was arrogance and pride, not necessity, that set the Pattullo government gunning on the North Shore. The pride of the Treasury benches has been humbled a bit."

Familiar Words

How familiar those words sound today—the arrogance of a premier . . . the humbling of the Treasury benches.

Well, as it turned out, that 1934 by-election, when Dolly Steeves won, was no handwriting on the wall for the Liberals. Back they came in 1937.

And now to 1939. Lberal Fred Crone had died. There was a by-election in Vancouver-Centre. CCF Mrs. Laura Jamieson won. A newspaper editorial said: "For their defeat, the Liberals may thank their leader—"

Ah, how familiar that sounds, too. For the defeat of Mr. Gunderson, Social Crediters may thank their leader, Mr. Bennett.

Well, that victory of Mrs. Jamieson's might have been the handwriting on the wall for the Liberals. Two years later they couldn't get enough seats to form a safe government, and came Coalition, with Mr. Pattullo being fired as Liberal leader because he wouldn't climb into the same political bed with his old political enemies, the Tories. No political expediency for Mr. Pattullo!

So, looking back on all these quite fascinating political ups and downs, we might say that anyone taking much comfort or much gloom from a by-election result—even when a cabinet minister's defeated—is a very foolish fellow indeed.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

Mr. Dale Calls Heinsite's Bluff

Mr. Heinsite didn't get away with his faulty analysis of the play of today's hand. Mrs. Keen led the king of hearts—an unfortunate choice since it made certain that Mr. Abel could win two tricks in the suit later.

The seven of hearts was led at trick two and Mr. Abel won with the 10 while Mr. Dale discarded a small diamond. Out came the queen of hearts and Mrs. Keen won with the ace and returned her last heart. Mr. Dale discarded two more diamonds.

After winning trick four with the jack of hearts, Mr. Abel cashed his three top diamonds. On the third diamond Mr. Dale dropped the four of spades. The king of spades was now cashed. Next came the 10 of spades which was overtaken with the jack in dummy.

Mr. Dale won with the queen and returned the jack of clubs. Mr. Abel ended up going down two.

"You should have made it," said Mr. Heinsite, singing his favorite song. "You could have made a very cute play in the spade suit. Just lead your 10 first and let it ride. When Dale wins with the queen and returns a club, you go up with the ace, lead the king of spades and overtake with the ace. You would then win three spades, three diamonds, two hearts and a club."

Mr. Dale took over. "This is insulting to me," he kidded. "If Abel led the 10 of spades first and let it ride, what makes you think I would win with the queen?"

"You'd have to," replied Mr. Hensite, "Otherwise, you might lose it entirely."

"The fact remains," said Mr. Dale, "that I would not win with the queen. And now if Abel led his king of spades and overtook with the ace, my queen would still stop the suit. Any way he played he would still be down on the hand."

Mr. Heinsite thought this over.

"Well, what I meant to say," he alibied, "was that Abel didn't quite have an opening two no trump bid."
