Belfast Rugger Team Leaves For America

BELFAST (Reuters)— Twenty-two Queen's University rugby players left Sunday night by air for New York on an exhibition tour which will take them to Vancouver and California.

They will play nine matches in a tour lasting five weeks. The party includes seven international players, including Jack Kyle, the captain.

Remember When

Jess Willard, despite a fractured finger suffered in the second round, successfully defended his world's heavyweight boxing title against Frank Moran in 10 rounds at New York in a no-decision bout 37 years ago today. Willard, who won the title from Jack Johnson in 1915, lost it to Jack Dempsey in 1919 at Toledo, Ohio.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

It's Not Easy To Say Which Bid Is Right or Wrong

A recent letter from a correspondent states: "What our club would like to see is a series of columns showing what is the right bid and why, and what is the wrong bid and why—by each of the four players."

I will be glad to comply, but first let me make this comment. On some hands you can say, "This bid is right" and "This bid is wrong." But not on many.

Bidding is not entirely a matter of mechanics. If it were, bridge would be a dull game. Strategy, tactics, the varying abilities of the other players, and other considerations also influence the choice of bids.

However, there are many basic situations where it can be said, at least, that one type of action is better than another. For example, situations where you have to decide whether to bid or pass, and the case where you must decide whether to raise your partner or bid a suit of your own. In a few days I will go into these and similar bidding problems.

But before that I want to show you a few hands to illustrate the point that there is no perfection in bidding—even by the most famous players in the game.

Today's hand is taken from the record of a very important match played some years ago. The North-South cards were held by two players whose names are known to many thousands of bridge enthusiasts. But if I were asked to explain or justify their bidding I would have to beg off.

South had a somewhat questionable opening bid and, as you see, was forced to rebid a four-card suit on the second round as the best of a bad lot of choices. Even though we figure the opening bid as satisfactory there was certainly no excuse for South to make a free bid of four hearts over East's three-spade call.

No reason is given as to why West's four-spade bid was not doubled. It can be set two tricks in top cards alone.

And the play wasn't any better than the bidding. No details are given but the record merely states brutally: "North-South down four at five diamonds."
