BLACKWOOD on Bridge

Muzzy's Bifocals Give Him Trouble—But What They Do to His Opponents!

This is another hand from the match between the team of Champion, Dale, Muzzy and Mrs. Keen against the team from the Uptown Club, whose members were named (by the sheerest coincidence) North, East, South and West.

In yesterday's column Mr. Champion told about the first time this deal was played. He was declarer at four hearts in the East position and made it refusing to take the finesse against the king of trumps.

"Muzzy and I defended against the same contract, four hearts," said Mr. Dale, "but the way Muzzy defended, Mr. East didn't have a chance to make it."

"Well, then, East didn't play it right," remarked Mr. Champion. "It's ice-cold against any defense."

LEAD HEART FOUR

"I think he did, the way the play came up," Mr. Dale replied. "Here's what happened:

"Muzzy thought long and hard about his opening lead. He was squinting and seemed to be having trouble with his bifocals. Finally he reached for what he thought was the eight of spades—and out come the FOUR OF HEARTS!"

"But that lead let's East make five-odd," commented Mrs. Keen.

TOOK FINESSE

"It would have," answered Mr. Dale, "if East had been able to see all the cards. But he had no way of knowing Muzzy had led from the king doubleton. East now planned to set up a cross-ruff just as you did, Champion, and he led a club at trick two.

"I won this," he old master continued, "and returned a heart. You can hardly blame Mr. East for taking the finesse which, of course, lost to Muzzy's lone king. Now there was no way to prevent us from winning a trick in each suit for down one."

Mr. Champion spared one of his rare smiles. "Looks like we've got a five-man team," he said. "The four of us and Muzzy's bifocals."
