SCREEN ★ ★ FLASHES

From the daring adventures of the Northwest Mounted Police, Twentieth Century-Fox has fashioned "Pony Soldier," a superb outdoor drama that ranks with the screen's finest western achievements.

Bathed in color by Technicolor and filmed against the majestic beauty of the Arizona mountain country, "Pony Soldier," which opens tomorrow at the Totem Theatre, recounts the gripping story of a Northwest Mountie who, in 1876, defied the land of the Cree Indians and forced them single-handedly to return to their reserve in Canada.

Director Joseph Newman assembled all the action and excitement he could muster to present an outdoor spectacle of rare grandeur and breathtaking adventure.

Tyrone Power, as the courageous Mountie, returns to the kind of role which has brought him universal recognition. Stalwart and heroic in the rich tradition of the famed Canadian constabulary, Power emerges brilliantly as the legendary Indian fighter. Effective contributions are also made by Cameron Mitchell as a fiery Cree war chief, Thomas Gomez as a warm-hearted halfbreed and Penny Edwards as a frightened hostage for whom Power defies death to rescue.

Notable in lesser roles are Robert Horton as a white renegade, Anthony Earl Numkena who provides some delightful moments as an Indian youth who befriends the Mountie, and Stuart Randall as the tribal chief.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Timing Is Important

Mr. Muzzy failed to time his play of this slam correctly and went down one. Part of the blame for the minus score, however, must be charged to Mr. Champion. Technically, he had the strength to go to six hearts, especially after Mr. Muzzy's second bid of two no trump which promised an above-minimum opening.

But Mr. Champion knows that Mr. Muzzy will rebid two no trump in this situation on an absolute minimum—provided his partner bids the suit in which Mr. Muzzy has no high cards. Besides, there was the fact that Mr. Muzzy would be the one to play the hand.

Mr. Masters led the king of spades and Mr. Muzzy won with the ace and immediately cashed the ace and queen of trumps. He then cashed the ace and queen of diamonds, returned to his hand with a trump and led the queen of diamonds, discarding dummy's last spade.

He ruffed a spade on the board. He still had a losing spade and the only way to return to his own hand again was with a trump. After making that play he realized too late that if he now ruffed his last spade, he would have no trumps left in either hand and would be left in dummy to lead away from A Q 4 in clubs.

Desperately, he led the 10 of clubs and let it ride. Mrs. Keen won with the jack and got out with the carefully-saved 10 of spades. This was ruffed on the board but now Mrs. Keen was bound to win another club trick.

As Mr. Champion pointed out, the hand could have been made as follows. Win the first spade and cash dummy's two top diamonds at once. Enter the closed hand with the 10 of hearts, lead the queen of diamonds and discard dummy's last spade. Ruff a spade on the board, come back with a trump and ruff the last spade.

Now enter the closed hand once more with a trump, lead the 10 of clubs and duck in dummy. Mrs. Keen would win with the jack but would have no good return. After this line of play, both dummy and closed hand would be out of spades and diamonds AND each hand would have a trump left. If Mrs. Keen led a club it would go into dummy's ace-queen. Any other return would give Mr. Muzzy a sluff and a ruff—and his contract.

CWAC Vets Plan Reunion In Ottawa

Women soldier-veterans plan to celebrate the 12th anniversary of the founding of the Canadian Women's Army Corps with a big reunion and dinner in Ottawa June 20-21.

The CWAC Association expects between 500 and 1,000 veterans to attend. The CWAC had a membership of about 13,000 during the war.

Previously, the annual reunions were limited to veterans but the association said the CWAC Reserve will be included in all reunion plans this year. About 1,100 women are in the reserve.
