Fashion Show Plans Complete

Last minute preparations for the fashion show to be presented by the Women's Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Canadian Legion Auditorium, are now complete under the direction of Mrs. Darrow Gomez and Mrs. William Rothwell.

The show will feature fashions with a distinctively Canadian look, styled with the natural zest and verve that distinguishes Canadian women from all others. The show has borrowed too, from others — a touch of old world charm from Paris, a bit of glamor from New York and a dash of tailored dignity from London. All are carefully combined with original Canadian flair, a show which will be sure to interest all discriminating women.

The show will feature everything new in the fashion world from the freshest in sportswear to elegant formals, some of which display the highly-debated Dior bustline.

Borden PTA Hear Plans For School

Plans for the proposed new Borden Street school on Acropolis Hill, were outlined for Borden Street Parent-Teacher associaton by District 52 school board Trustee Joe Scott.

Trustee Scott told the meeting that the total cost of the two story, 12-room school would be $301,000 which includes equipment, cost of the site, connection of the city sewer and contingency fund. A 65 per cent majority is required to pass the referendum for the school, Trustee Scott said, at the December 9 elections.

The membership committee reported a total of 91 members, while the Dental Clinic committee reported that Mrs. Galbraith, of Annunciation school was elected their new vice-president and that more money is needed to make the Dental Clinic a success.

The meeting decided to send a donation to UBC alumni for the home management house. Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Denis Burnip were elected the delegates to the citizenship committee. Mrs. Stone's division was awarded the attendance banner.

Refreshments were served by conveners Mrs. Ken Harding and Mrs. Herbert Marchant.

Alwin Jeffrey, Myrtle Weir Wed at Kingdom Hall Rites

The Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses was the scene Saturday evening of a wedding where more than 100 friends and well-wishers witnessed the marriage of Miss Myrtle Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Weir, 8592 Oak Street, Vancouver to Alwin Jeffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffrey of 604 Thompson Street, Prince Rupert.

Preceding the simple ceremony, the minister, R. A. Archibald, used the occasion to briefly review the origin of marriage, reminding the couple of its sacredness and the fact that marriage is a three-fold cord, involving the husband, the wife and their Creator.

Mr. Archibald said that it is only when creatures recognize this fact that they can find their greatest joy and happiness in marriage. He called attention to the prospects before this young couple of "living through the present world trouble into an earthly paradise, wherein if continuing obedient to the loving laws of their God, they and their children need never die."

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, where the many beautiful gifts attested to the high esteem in which this young couple are held by their many friends.

Ex-City Banker Gets New Post

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Minnion and family have recently taken up residence in Sechelt, B. C. where Mr. Minnion has been appointed manager of the Bank of Montreal. He is well known here having worked for many years on the staff of the Prince Rupert branch of the B of M. Mrs. Minnion was formerly Miss Thelma Hedstrom of this city.

IT'S HARD to believe that this handsome date-time ensemble is fashioned entirely of cotton. Designed by Nelly De Grab for the National Cotton Council, the outfit consists of a full skirt, done in a Persian woven tweed with a brushed surface, and a brief fitted jacket of wine-colored velveteen.

MacKenzie-Watchell Rites Held at Annunciation Church

Annunciation Church was the scene for a pretty morning wedding yesterday uniting in marriage Anne Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watchell, Fort St. John, B.C. and John Graham MacKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. MacKenzie, 1237 Eleventh Avenue East. The groom, born in Prince Rupert, is well known in the younger circles.

Father F. O. Mohan officiated at the ceremony in which the bride, given in marriage by Leo Doiron, wore a lovely teal blue dressmaker suit, jacketed with extra wide lapels and skirt with a double inverted pleat. Accessories were of light and navy blue color and a corsage of red roses.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Clara Rapkoski, wore a light grey suit buttoned to the neck packet and styled with slim skirt with back pleats. She chose mauve and black accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Best man was George Dumas, and organist was Father H. E. Tunney.

Following the marriage ceremony a bridal breakfast was held at the Broadway Cafe. Afterwards the newlyweds boarded the plane for Vancouver, with the bride wearing a three-quarter length fur coat, a gift from the groom.

On their return they will make their home at 1437 Piggott Place. Mr. MacKenzie is an employee of the Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., Watson Island. Mrs. MacKenzie was formerly employed at Miller Bay hospital.

Little Theatre Comedy On Last Time Tonight

Tonight is the last opportunity for those who enjoy good acting, an intriguing plot and a play that is as 'naughty' as they come when Prince Rupert Little Theatre presents its third and final performance of "The Moon Is Blue."

The local theatrical group directed by G. P. Woodside, last night improved on their Monday night's presentation of F. Hugh Herbert's three act comedy, before a small but appreciative audience in the Civic Centre.

Nina Youngman who shone as the neurotic Blanche in "Street Car Named Desire" and the efficient, sophisticated secretary in "Present Laughter" plays the difficult role of Patty O'Neil, a gay young thing who thinks "it's high school to smoke and drink unless you have a craving for it."

Accused by up-and-coming young architect Donald Gresham, played by Peter Mickles, of being "a professional virgin" Patty is far more concerned with clearing herself on that score than she is of being seduced in Gresham's apartment. While she trusts Gresham implicitly she spends the play voicing thoughts that even shake the icy calm of Gresham's prospective father-in-law David Slater an expert on "food, liquor and sex, in that order."

John Robertson, in the role of Slater turns in a most commendable performance as the gadabout lecher who has been too busy with his own conquests to worry about his daughter Cynthia. Cynthia, who is never seen or heard, nevertheless spreads her influence throughout the play in rivalling Patty's affections for the confused but sincere architect.

Harley Lewis, as Patty's father who threatens "fire, brimstone and damnation" to try to keep his daughter on the straight and narrow, carries out his brief part effectively and convincingly.

Peter Mickles who played the architect still needs to "unbend" a trifle and "live" his role a little stronger, but nevertheless made a noteworthy contribution to a play that had the audience howling with laughter from the opening lines.

Curtain time tonight is 8:30.
