Man Rescues Friend from Lake

Special to The Daily News

FRANCOIS LAKE—A Francois Lake district Native had a narrow escape from death yesterday when the ice on the lake on which he was walking gave way, plunging him into the icy water about a mile from shore.

Tommy Dan and Walter Williams were walking across the rotting ice when Williams, who was ahead of Dan, heard his companion shout for help. Williams turned round to see that the ice had given way and Dan was in the water. Williams crept on the cracking ice and pulled out his friend.

Dan said that he could not have made it himself as the ice broke off every time he tried to draw himself out of the water. The two were on their way from Southbank, to Francois Lake when the mishap occurred.

The ice breakup is well underway today.
