AS I SEE IT — PHILPOTT

LOOK at the 1955 reality from the Japanese point of view. She has close to 80 million people who literally must "export or die."

Where can she export? Certainly not to North America, in any volume, for North America already makes the same goods and pays far higher wages in their production. Any flood of Japanese goods would cause a clamor to shut the gates against Japan's low wages which no government could withstand.

But just at Japan's front door stands mighty China—the re-awakening giant with 600 million mouths to feed. China is out to industrialize herself, and Japan can supply what she needs.

No amount of idological prejudice nor propaganda can disguise the fact that Japan and China fit each other's wants and needs like a hand fits a glove.
