Little Theatre News . . . . and Views

By CONNIE CHASTNEY

Amateur theatricals have their ups and downs but Jim Hegan, Little Theatre association stage manager for "Burlesque" had a minor setback this week while producing a set, or part of a set.

Preparing some flats or scenery background for the musical to be shown in the Civic Centre December 6, 7 and 8, Jim had bought two lengths of canvas, one six feet by 14 feet and the other four feet by 14 feet. While Jim was busy backstage on another project a member of the Little Theatre gang decided to be helpful. Not realizing that two different widths were required he cut two feet off the six-foot wide canvas to even them up.

Before Jim could have apoplexy, Rema Ranaghan came to the rescue and spent considerable time sewing the remnant back where it belonged. Now Jim is happy again and there are only two more flats to complete the sets for the hilarious show.

Tension is mounting every day with the players of "Burlesque" as there are only six more days until opening night. Director of the musical, Ken McIntyre reports that everything is going smoothly and the chorus girls have their routines down pat.

Tickets are now available at Deeth's Pharmacy, members of the Association and the Civic Centre. Reserve seats are going fast.

Remember, "Burlesque" opens next Friday, December 7. Be seein' you there next week—I hope. Until then—so long.
