BOGGED DOWN—A Sherman tank bogs down in the mud at Camp Gagetown army base near Fredericton, N.B. The only complaint against the camp, the army's newest and biggest, covering 427 square miles, is that the undersoil is muddy and wet. Tank men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons often shake their heads sadly as they watch the 38-ton machines roll back to base caked with mud after manoeuvres.

Pitcairn Island was discovered in 1767 but was not settled until 23 years later when mutineers of the Bounty landed there.
