A REAL BOOSTER OF BOOSTERVILLE

To the great majority who cannot afford to go to Europe and do the "grand tour" there is a certain satisfaction derived from the experiences of those more fortunate. A Mr. Miller, of Evanstone, Illinois, relating his interesting experiences and conclusions therefrom in the Montreal Herald says:

"I feel just like a rube who has bought a gold brick. never got so badly stung in all my life. Europe is the biggest bunk in the world. The Alps are nothing but foothills. You could lose them in the Rocky Mountains. Venice smells to CALGARY heaven. The health authorities in any village in the United States would clean up canals in fortyeight hours. Monte Carlo is gamblers there are pikers. The average travelling salesman in the United States plays a steeper game than they do there. My only memory of Berlin is stale beer and rotten cigars. I brought back some of the cigars to hand to some of my alleged friends. Paris is a city of cheap side shows. The boasted beauty of Paris women fades when compared with some girls I know in Evanston, Lon-

No doubt at all that Mr. Miller of Evanston, is the very type of man that Evanston, Illinois, delights to honor. Not for him the scintillations the Great White Way; compared with the metropolitan magnificence of Evanston, Illinois, all the rest are stale, flat and unprofitable. The returned traveller declares he is far better off back home looking at a ball game. He is.
