Many Chinese Women Doctors Says Young, Attractive Intern

TORONTO (CP) — Women doctors are no novelty in China, pretty Dr. Yin - Ching Yeung. A third of her classmates were women.

An attractive brunette from Hong Kong, just a shade under 30, Dr. Yeung is now interning at Toronto's New Mount Sinai Hospital.

She began her medical studies at Yat Sen University on the Chinese mainland. But half-way through the Communists took control of China. Faced with the choice of continuing her course under Communist rule or writing off more than two years study as lost, she returned to get her degree.

After graduation in 1952 she returned to Hong Kong where her father is a well-to-do merchant. In Toronto she plans to take a licence qualifying her to practice anywhere in the British Commonwealth.

INTERNED IN DETROIT

Last year Dr. Yeung spent a year interning at Women's Hospital in Detroit. Several weeks ago she arrived in Toronto for further training.

But Dr. Yeung hasn't definitely decided her future. She hopes to specialize in gynaecology and obstetrics and return to Hong Kong.

Dr. Yeung admits to having a boy friend, also from Hong Kong, now interning at Ottawa General Hospital. The two may eventually practice together in their native city.

The young woman doctor comes from a medically-minded family. Of her three brothers, one is studying medicine in Hong Kong, another dentistry in the United States. Her oldest brother is an engineer in San Francisco.

OLD ADORNMENT

Ear-rings were worn by both men and women as personal adornment in former centuries.

FOUR-MONTH-OLD BABY DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs Howard Lavigne, 430 Bowser Street, received the names Theresa Leslie Kim at the baptismal ceremony Thursday evening at the Church of the Annunciation with Father J. I. McMahon, (left) officiating. Holding the infant is her godmother, Mrs. Aime Arisais with godfather Mr. Arvisais standing along side. Mr. and Mrs. Arvisais and two children, Phillip and Michel, arrived in Prince Rupert July 11 by car from their home in Ottawa. Mr. Arvisais, uncle of Mr. Lavigne, is the inspector of Catholic schools in the capital. They returned to their home yesterday by car, after a short visit to Kitimat.

Too Many Women Shirking Jury Duty Sheriff Claims

TIMMINS (CP)—Sheriff Frank Donohue of Cochrane says it is time women awakened to their responsibilities in regard to jury service.

The sheriff says women are only mildly interested in jury duty. Less than half of those notified responded to a jury call here.

"Too many are shirking their duty," says Sheriff Donohue.

Women have the privilege of refusing to share equal responsibilities with men on jury duty. A man is bound to attend court once he receives his summons, but a woman has only to sign a note and mail it to the sheriff to be relieved of duty.

"Women should stop and think of the long uphill fight they had for many years to win the privilege of sitting on a jury before they send in rejections," the Sheriff says.

"Women can do much effective work on juries. Much could be done to advance prison reform among women — a great need in this province."

The sheriff recalls that not too many years ago women like Elizabeth Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, Lucy Stone and Amelia Bloomer met with derision when their suffragette movement asked for equal rights with men.
