B.C. Teacher Training To Be Changed in '56

VANCOUVER (CP) — All teacher-training in British Columbia will be reorganized under the University of British Columbia next year in a move to improve the academic and professional level of the teaching profession.

A joint statement made public today by the University and the B.C. department of education said the new program will go into effect in September, 1956.

Under the new program, all teacher-training will be given by a college of education to be established at UBC. Victoria College in Victoria will offer training for elementary teachers similar in curriculum to that given at UBC. All teacher-training will carry degree credit.

The statement said that for the year beginning in September there will be no change in the present system of training elementary teachers in the Vancouver and Victoria normal schools or of training secondary teachers at the school of education at UBC. This will be the last year of operation for these teacher-training institutions.

FIVE-YEAR COURSE

Under the new program prospective teachers will be required to complete a five-year arts and science course combined with professional courses in education, including observation and practice teaching, to obtain a degree in education. The degree will qualify teachers for a secondary basic teaching certificate.

A two-year course for high school graduates with university entrance standing will be offered to qualify prospective teachers for an elementary basic certificate. Holders of elementary certificates will be required to complete a further three years of training, either intra-murally or by summer sessions to qualify for a degree in education and the secondary certificate.

In addition, an emergency one-year course will be offered students with university entrance standing that will allow them to teach elementary classes for four years.

Holders of emergency teaching certificates would be required to complete the remaining courses of the two-year elementary course during the four-year period of certification.

Regina Pair Win Awards

OTTAWA (CP) — Public health bursaries to help finance special short course training in child and maternal health have been awarded two employees of the Regina General Hospital, the health department anounced today.

The awards go to Dr. J. D. Stephen, pathologist, and Miss M. Lipsett, laboratory technician. Dr. Stephen will spend a month at the pathology department, Children's Medical Centre, Boston, with Dr. Sidney Farber studying paediatric pathology. Miss Lipsett will spend a month studying new methods in transfusion services with Dr. Bruce Chown of Winnipeg.

THIS FANCY WEAVE worsted dress in two tones of grey trimmed with white pique has a long, fitted body line to hip level with fullness flowing from the hips at the back of the skirt. Note the unusual seaming effect at the waist which is repeated at the neckline. Designer is Michael Sherard of London. (CP Photo)

City Witnesses Describe Immensity of Convention

Immensity of the recent Jehovah Witness convention in Vancouver as seen in the packed Empire Stadium and praise for the efficient handling of feeding facilities for more than 20,000 delegates, was voiced here today by the first Prince Rupert Witnesses who returned by plane today from Vancouver.

The Vancouver convention was the second in a series of 11 to be held in North America and in Europe this summer. The Prince Rupert contingent was headed by Arthur Melin, local presiding minister of the Jehovah Witnesses.

Delegates said that Empire Stadium, home of the B.C. Lions football team, had been transformed into a gigantic "Kingdom Hall" for the convention and a peak attendance of 21,874 on one of the convention days was reported.

Delegates from 10 countries besides Canada and the United States attended the convention, with 35 states of the U.S. and nine of Canada's provinces, the Yukon and Alaska represented.

Highlight of the convention was an address by N. H. Knorr, president of the Watch Tower Society, entitled "World Conquest Soon . . . By God's Kingdom."

Knorr said that "fear of world conquest haunts both political blocs of today's divided world."

This fear, he said, blinds the nations "to what Almighty God can do"

He added that "if, before Armageddon the earth were conquered by communism or by any other radical or aggresive group, this in turn would be finally conquered by God's Kingdom."

"Nations, in and outside Christendom err in leaving this ultimate, inevitable world conquest out of their deliberations," he said.

Delegates here said that to accommodate the thousands of persons attending the assembly, 2,000 private citizens opened their homes to the Witnesses in addition to 3,500 listed in hotels and motels.

A mammoth cafeteria staffed and operated by Witnesses served hot meals during the convention. Salad making machines and automatic potato peelers were used to prepare about 75,000 meals. Ten serving lines were used in addition to 27 refreshment stands and roving workers with baskets of food kept 700 volunteers busy.

The food system attracted officials from the Vancouver civil defence and Red Cross organizations, who surveyed the project with a view to caring for civil defence needs in the event of an emergency.

A section of Empire Stadium was provided for deaf mutes. An interpreter using sign language served as a hearing aid to those in need.

At the mass immersion, 500 persons completed another step of ordination as ministers of Jehovah's witnesses.

Primary purpose of the convention was to provide Witness ministers with advanced and practical training in Bible education.

Ever Since Eve

IF YOU NEED A SCARECROW to protect those wonderful vegetables you have growing in your home garden, even the boldest bird in the flock will avoid one made of 2 half-inch dowels crossed through holes drilled in a broomstick. Tin cans and lids —snipped and bent into shapes that turn in the lightest breeze —are wired to the dowels with tiny barrel swivels, like those on fishing lines. If you wish, you may also paint your tin can and lids brilliantly.

I'M SURE EVERY HOUSEWIFE is aware that extra attention should be given to food handling during the warm weather. And, in order to avoid the hazards of food poisoning, here are some basic rules:

● Do not let perishable foods (meat, fish, poultry, salad mixtures, cream-filled pies and cakes, etc.) remain out of the refrigerator longer than is absolutely necessary.

● When you cook meat, fish or poultry for later use, cool and refrigerate it as quickly as possible. It is not necessary to allow it to cool to room temperature before putting it into the refrigerator.

● When possible, avoid preparing meat loaf, stews, salad mixtures, etc., too far in advance of cooking or serving. These mixtures tend to spoil more rapidly than the individual ingredients. Flake the fish, cut up the meat, chop the onions, etc., ahead of time, but store each ingredient in a separate container, ready to be combined just before cooking or serving.

● When you must prepare large quantities of salad several hours before serving time, do not refrigerate all of it in one large bowl; complete chilling may be so slow that spoilage can easily occur. Divide the salad among containers small enough to allow rapid chilling throughout, and keep it refrigerated until ready to serve.

● When planning what to take on a picnic, eliminate foods that tend to spoil rapidly. (Cream fillings or cream or custard pies should never be taken on warm-weather picnics unless they can be kept ice-cold.) Refrigerate what you do plan to take well in advance, so it will be very cold when you start out. If you do not have an insulated bag or container, wrap each dish or jar in several layers of newspaper. This will insulate it surprisingly well.

If you are fortunate enough to have a home freezer, it is easy to start out with your freezer picnic foods in frozen condition. They will thaw during the journey and will be fresh and ready to eat when needed.

With a little thought, you can have a delicious, moist, fresh and safe picnic lunch, even without insulation or freezing equipment—for example, canned luncheon meats; hard-cooked eggs, plus the makings for sandwiches; lettuce, sucu tomatoes, and cucumbers, kept cold in chilled refrigerator bags; a jar of mayonnaise; sliced bread.

● If you are on a motor trip, eat only at clean eating places. Select simple foods, avoid raw milk, and do not drink water from strange springs or wells.

Of course, care should be taken in handling food all year round, and most of these suggestions apply to every season.
