Hoad, Rosewall Renew Feud At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)— Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, both of Australia, met for the men's singles championship in the 70th Wimbledon tennis tournament today.

But when was the first time these 21-year-old Aussie tennis stars met?

It was 10 years ago at Rockdale in Sydney, Australia. The boys were 11 and they played a preliminary match before the American Davis Cup team gave the main exhibition.

The Americans were Bill Talbert, Gardnar Mulloy, Ted Schroeder and Jack Kramer.

"I remember it well," Talbert, non-playing captain of the current American Davis Cup team, said today. "The little fellows played beautifully. Rosewall won 6-0, 6-0 and some of us said "those youngsters are good enough to make Wimbledon someday."

Three years later Hoad finally beat Rosewall for the first time. That was for the New South Wales junior championship.

In the last couple of years Hoad has had the upper hand. The last time Rosewall beat him was in the London championships at the Queen's Club last year. But Hoad had an excuse. He also was married that day.

LEAFLETS THREE — LET IT BE BEST WAY TO MISS POISON IVY

If a plant has three leaves on each stem—don't go near it, is the advice of the Health League of Canada, as the best way to avoid poison ivy this summer.

This plant looks innocent and attractive, with its glossy dark green leaves, and white berries. Poison ivy grows in almost any soil, and may be found anywhere, particularly on the edges of country roads, close under hedges, in full sunlight, or in shade.

The rash caused by contact with any part of the plant, or even from tiny flecks of oily sap, carried in the smoke from piles of burning poison ivy, can be serious, causing scarring and hospitalization.

When picking raspberries or wildflowers this summer, be on guard, warns the Health League. If you find that you have been exposed, follow these rules at once::

- Wash the exposed parts of the body at once with laundry soap and warm water. Rinse several times. DO NOT SCRUB.
- Apply rubbing alcohol liberally to exposed area.
- Dress in clean fresh clothing, and see that clothing which may have been contaminated is cleaned—either by laundering or with a cleaning solvent.
- If, despite all precautions, a rash appears, consult your doctor at once.
