Censor Bans Review Song About Eden

By EDDIE GILMORE

LONDON (AP)— The plight of Anthony Eden—slated to become prime minister if Sir Winston Churchill ever retires—has been chronicled in song, but the British censor says it can't be sung.

Under the title, "Right Hand Man," it was to have been one of the featured tunes on a new London revue, but the censor banished the verses; there were seven of them, with a stroke of his official stamp, "Deleted by the Lord Chamberlain."

The censor is the Earl of Scarbrough, a former Conservative member of Parliament. His job is to license theatres and censor all plays, usually looking for obscenity.

CONVERSATIONAL TOPIC

The long years through which Eden, 59, has patiently waited to take over from the 79-year-old prime minister is a ripe and favorite topic of the British people and press and the producers of the new revue though it topical. They handled it this way:

Thirty-one years in the business,
Years of unselfish devotion,
Nearly 20 years in the same old job
With hardly a hope of promotion.
People did say the old boy might retire,
And though we'd all hate to see him put on the shelf,
If he doesn't make up his mind pretty soon
I'll be too old for the job myself.

After this verse, the song refers to Churchill's becoming a Knight of the Garter, and to his painting and his brick-laying of which he is considerably proud, and to slips and pieces of poor political judgment that his critics accuse him of.

The old man's a genius—none would dispute,
Though at times he's a bit of a tartar;
I recall he once said, "We must pull up our socks"
At that time he hadn't a Garter.
As an orator, author, he's second to none;
Painter—and builder—brilliant as any;
But I feel I could lay bricks almost as well,
And perhaps without dropping so many.

"U.S. WHIPPING BOY"

The song also refers to recent American criticism of Eden, the foreign secretary.

But I'm a sort of permanent fixture—
No power and not much glory,
America's favorite whipping boy,
Just an ordinary front-page Tory.

And, the song ends, as one might imagine:

Thirty odd years of frustrated desire
Waiting for senior men to retire,
Assistant, adviser, consultant and guide;
Always the bridesmaid—never the bride.

Donald Monat, 26-year-old producer of the show, "Light Fantastic," said the cut came three days before the show was to open. He said he protested, but the lord chamberlain insisted it had to go, unless Eden gave his permission. Eden was busy at the Geneva conference.

"We had no alternative but to cut it," said Monat.

The Daily Mirror, front-paging the affair, called the lord chamberlain's action "ham-handed and stupid."

Speedy Jaunt Keeps Duke Out of Date

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—The Duke of Edinburgh, covering so much of Canada's North in so little time, is finding it hard to keep track of the days.

While visiting Churchill Wednesday, the Duke toured the little Eskimo museum crammed with exhibits gathered by missionaries of the Roman Catholic Oblate Order in their wanderings over the face of the Arctic.

He was asked to sign the guest book. He picked up the pen, then paused.

"What is the day?" he asked.

As soon as he got an answer he signed "Phillip, 11th August 1954."

TO QUEBEC TODAY

The Duke flew into Churchill Wednesday from Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories. The day before he was in Port Radium and in Coppermine, on the coast of the Arctic. Today he flies to Quebec.

The sailor with the pilot's licence who also has a liking for fast cars, had a new experience on the barren tundra outside this port on Hudson Bay.

He took over the controls of two pitching, slithering Arctic troop carriers, the Canadian penguin and the U.S. Otter, in a three-mile trip through water and spongy, muddy muskeg.

Said Pfc. Robert Geys of Washingtonville, N.Y., driver of the Otter: "I explained once what each thing was and he took it over just like it was made for him."

More presents poured in for Princess Anne and Prince Charles. Two beautiful polar bear skins were handed to the Duke by two Churchill youngsters. Making the presentation on behalf of Churchill's children were Winnifred Brown, 16, who has lived here all her life, and Jimmy Hayden, 13, of Boston. He is the son of Lt. Col. R. H. Hayden, the officer commanding U.S. forces at this base.
