A CHIP OFF THE OLD COP? — Life with father doesn't appear too happy at the moment for tiny Maurizio Brambilla, 4, as he fights off tears of frustration. He tried in vain to keep up with his dad on this Milan traffic pedestal, but though he looks like a traffic cop, he can't achieve that professional solemnity with which his father performs his chores. It takes time, Maurizio, just be patient!

Brant Season Extended

The black brant hunting season for a portion of the western district including the waters around Prince Rupert and southern British Columbia mainland coast has been extended until Wednesday, Game Warden Clifford Walker announced today.

Normally the open season for migratory game birds is closed by the end of February but the terms of the Migratory Birds treaty of 1916 permit an extension in certain cases. It will be legal to shoot black brant up to and including Wednesday, March 7.

When it became apparent that the brant would reach B.C. coastal areas later than usual, the B.C. Game commissioner requested the Canadian Wildlife service of northern affairs and national resources to extend the season. The Wildlife service investigated the situation through its officers stationed in B.C. and, in addition, checked reports of the annual inventory of North American waterfowl compiled by the Canadian Wildlife service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service. The brant population was found to be well up to strength and the extension was approved by Order-in-Council of March 1st. It applies only to the current season.

Black brant breed on the shores of the Arctic Ocean and the Bering Sea and winter mainly on the Pacific Coast of California.
