News Agency Holds 87th Meet

LONDON (Reuters)—The 87th annual general meeting of the Press Association, Britain's co-operative news gathering agency, was held Wednesday.

The Press Association is a partner in the ownership of Reuters.

Reviewing the year, the chairman, J. L. Burgess of the Cumberland News, said it had been one of tremendous news pressure, culminating in quick succession with Sir Winston Churchill's retirement, the general election and the current railroad strike.

Harry Lindley of the Huddersfield Examiner was elected chairman for the ensuing year.
