BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

A Little Bridge Learning Can Prove "Expensive"

Elwell was the name of one of the first writers on bridge. In his book, "Elwell on Bridge," published about 50 years ago, some of the sentences were played up by the use of red ink and bold-face type.

Here are a few of them: "Always cover an honor with an honor," "always return your partner's lead," "lead through strength," "play second hand low," "play third hand high."

Somebody finally murdered Elwell.

Not that there isn't some value in his adages. But in bridge as it is played today such adages represent just "a little learning" and that, of course, can be a dangerous (and expensive) thing. Today the words "always" and "never" have practically disappeared from the field of bridge advice.

THE TRICK

There are many situations in which covering an honor or returning partner's lead are exactly the wrong things to do. The trick is to recognize those situations when they come up.

Miss Lucy Brash was even looser than usual in the bidding of today's hand. She was short of the requirements for an opening bid of three no trump. But she knew that Mr. Meek would be afraid to raise an opening two no trump bid, holding something like four clubs to the queen-jack and the queen of spades, so she decided to go all the way by herself.

South dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Mr. Heinsite opened the deuce of hearts and Mr. Muzzy won with the king, Miss Brash dropping the 10. Mr. Muzzy is a player who prides himself on always returning his partner's lead. He led back the trey of hearts (the four would have been correct), Miss Brash played the jack and Mr. Heinsite won with the ace and led a third heart.

AN EXTRA

Thus Miss Brash had time to knock out the important ace of diamonds while she still had her thin stopper in clubs. She ended up winning four diamonds, two hearts, three spades and a club making the impossible contract with an extra trick.

"Shift to a club at the second trick, Muzzy," rasped Mr. Heinsite, "and we beat their brains out."

Miss Brash felt sorry for Mr. Muzzy. "Why single out Mr. Muzzy?" she inquired. "Several of us could have beat the hand. I could have, for example, if I had led the ace and another club as soon as I got the lead."

"Very funny," Mr. Heinsite sneered.

"Just my way of getting to the point," Miss Brash continued, "which is that there was nothing to prevent you from shifting to a club at trick three. That would have beaten me too."

PUNCHING BAG PURCHASE AUTHORIZED FOR CENTRE

A report of increased interest in boxing at the Civic Centre, resulted Thursday night in authorization being given Fred Jones, Centre secretary-manager for the purchase of a light punching bag for the use of the boxing club.

The Civic Centre Association executive gave the purchase the green light after Mr. Jones reported that under the direction of Maurice Bishop, about 20 boxing enthusiasts were attending workouts at the training room Wednesdays and Fridays.

Nicholas Gurvich told the executive meeting that the Prince Rupert Elk's Boxing Club hoped to arrange a fight card soon. A meeting for this purpose will be held between a Civic Centre committee and club representatives.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (?) — Despite collapse of the hockey rink under tons of snow, hockey games are being continued. Municipal workers and volunteers removed the debris and set up an open-air rink.

AG To Be Sent Transcript Of Proceedings

VANCOUVER (?) — Transcript of a divorce case, disclosing "gravest irregularities" on the part of a private investigator, will be sent to the attorney general, Mr. Justice Harold McInnes said in Supreme Court here.

The irregularities, Mr. Justice McInnes said, were on the part of E. D. Edwards, 62.

The elderly investigator had sworn an affidavit that he had served a divorce petition on Vivian Lorraine Fedoruk and Charles Curran, named correspondent, in Vancouver in September 1954.

Called as a witness Tuesday, Edwards admitted he sent the papers to Mrs. Fedoruk and Curran by mail to Prince Rupert. He said he confused the Fedoruk case with another while making the affidavit.

The divorce petition of Stephen J. Fedoruk, shingle weaver, was dismissed.

SOAKED GIRL WITH GAS

MOBILE, Ala. (?)—A 23-year-old man who admitted turning a girl into a flaming torch following a tavern argument was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment. William Jackson said he poured gasoline on Betty Jean Watts, 19, then threw a match on her. She was burned on 70 per cent of her body and died several days later.
