Highlights, Lowlights Of Li'l League

By A. E. WILLIAMSON

Highlights and lowlights of the Prince Rupert Little League for the week ending July 16 are as follows:

LOWLIGHTS

- Parents who are still strangers at games
- Poor attendance at games
- The rained-out game Wednesday night.

HIGHLIGHTS

- The wonderful ball-playing weather for the last two games of the current regular season
- The exceptionally low scores as teams play tight ball
- The grandparents attending games regularly
- The announcement that Thursday, July 21 is the date of the yearly classic featuring mothers and fathers with Little League players taking over coaching and umpiring. Hold that date open!

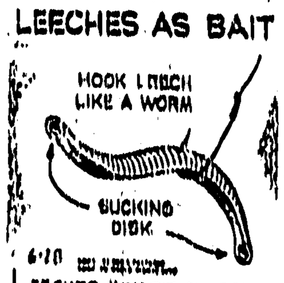
LEECHES AS BAIT



LEECHES INHABIT SLUGGISH POOLS, ETC. CATCH THEM IN BOTTOM-LYING, MINNOW-LIKE TRAPS BAITED WITH BLOODY MEAT, OR SLOWLY WADE WATERS IN BOOTS OR WADERS RUBBED WITH BLOOD TO LURE THE BLOOD SUCKERS INTO ATTACHING ONTO WADING GEAR. (DON'T WADE BAREFOOT: IF A LEECH ATTACHES TO BARE SKIN, DON'T PULL ON IT; APPLY SALT, IODINE, OR TOBACCO JUICE, AND IT RELEASES ITSELF.) SOME LEECHES OCCUPY LOW BUSHES.

LEECHES ARE EARTHWORM FAMILY MEMBERS AND ARE DURABLE BAIT FOR BASS, CATFISH, ETC. THEY'LL LIVE IN WATER FOR WEEKS WITHOUT FOOD.

DESPITE the happy expression, this chap is wheeling it in, not carting it away! He's Russell Spore, chairman of the Railroad Community Committee of Toledo, and he's representing 11 Eastern railroads there, turning over $771,096.97 in Lucas County (Ohio) taxes to the two gentlemen flanking him, County Treasurer Daniel F. U.S. Congress Critical Of Dollar-A-Year Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—The war-created dollar-a-year man is under fire in congressional circles.

Some members of congress want to curb the authority of business executives who enter the government on a "loan" basis from private industry to help in the country's defence mobilization plans. The practice of enlisting such industry assistance developed in the United States and Canada during the Second World War.

The congressmen feel that dollar-a-year men shouldn't hold high administrative posts or have a voice in policy decisions.

EXPERTS NEEDED

The administration, and the heads of defence agencies directly concerned, say a prohibition against "borrowing" executives from industry would hamper the U.S. mobilization program.

The controversy, which is beginning to shape up into a bitter row between government and Congress, arises from an amendment by Senator Morse, Democrat from Oregon, to the U.S. Defence Production Act. His amendment would bar men loaned by industry from holding key posts or making key decisions.

The Defence Production Act, similar to the Canadian act of the same name, is the source from which the U.S. government draws its power to establish priorities and to allocate materials in the interests of its defence production and mobilization programs.

At the root of the U.S. controversy is a special report from Controller General Joseph Campbell alleging that the government suffered financial losses on several zinc contracts made during the government service of Howard I. Young, president of the American Zinc and Smelting Co. Young was the non-salaried administrator of the defence materials procurement agency from 1951 to 1953.

Jacob's Arm Holds Fate Of Bombers' Performance

By The Canadian Press

If quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs regains his old form, Winnipeg Blue Bombers will have a good chance in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season. If he doesn't, they may be up the creek with a gimpy passing arm.

Bombers have quarterback troubles already.

They ran into a snag Friday when it was learned that import Bobby Freeman from Auburn University, a hot-shot quarter Bombers were counting on for the 1955 football campaign, was jumping his contract to play for Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

The loss of Freeman leaves Bombers with Indian Jack as the only logical signal-caller. And the state of his arm isn't known.

Jacobs, with Winnipeg for the last five years, had the poorest season of his big-league career last year. He underwent an operation on the elbow of his passing arm during the winter. Nobody knows yet whether he can regain his old form.

If Jacobs doesn't make the grade, the Bombers are in a jam.

The only other player able to take the job would be Buddy Leake from the University of Oklahoma. Leake, primarily a halfback, played at quarter for Oklahoma Sooners two years ago.

All teams in the WIFU and the Big Four league now have started the drills. Besides the Bombers, Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders began training Friday night.

There was a surprise development in the Edmonton Eskimo camp. The club said Frankie Morris, star guard with the 1954 Grey Cup champion Esks, has retired. The 31-year-old Morris, one of the best native-born defensive linemen in the game, wants to devote full time to his family and job, Edmonton officials said.
