138 Babies To Be Judged In Rotary Club Contest

Dr. W. B. Laing, Skeena Health Unit medical health officer and members of the health unit staff will have a busy time tomorrow afternoon when they judge 138 babies from two to 18 months old entered in the baby contest at the Prince Rupert Rotary Club's tea.

The contest, highlight of the Rotary's annual summer tea, to be staged in the Civic Centre auditorium, has 69 boys and 69 girls registered, it was reported today by Rotary publicity chairman, Arthur Ogilvie.

Babies will be judged by standards established by the provincial health department for health, development, personality, intelligence and other factors, Mr. Ogilvie announced.

Judging will be carried out in private without the attendance of mothers, following which the winners will be paraded on stage and prizes awarded the top selection in the various age groups.

An exhibit of merchandise arranged by a group of 20 local merchants will be displayed in the gymnasium as another added attraction at the event, as well as a home-cooking table, and novelty booth in the auditorium.

Serviteurs will be members of the Rotary club while Rotary-Annies will volunteer to assist in attending the babies during the contest.

Swim Suits Make 40-Year Cycle

All Types of Fashion Represented in 1956

Special to The Daily News

MONTREAL—Whether you're a candidate for the Olympics, or just a sun-loving sand sitter, the bathing suit you wear is important both for style and comfort.

Swim suit fashions this year have completed the cycle from Annette Kellerman's revolutionary—and in her day shocking—tank suit of 40 odd years ago, to this year's version of the same style.

In the interim women have worn two-piece suits and Bikinis, strapped and strapless suits, skirted and little-boy-short suits. This year all the fashions of the cycle are represented to some degree.

One of Canada's main swim suit houses (Jantzen of Canada Limited) is showing a few two-piece suits. This is the fashion surprise of the season. Two-piece suits have not been featured on this continent since late in the 40's. They are a style of suit that few women can wear well since they call for a near perfect figure and a flat midriff. But for those who can meet the figure requirements, they're ideal for both swimming and sunning. Bikinis—the favorite swim suit of European women — have never been very popular on the North American continent except for a minority of women, but they're still in this year's fashion picture for the few who so desire.

The skirted suit—1956 version — has a slimmed down skirt. Most women find this type of suit ideal for sunning, less so for swimming. There have been many good style improvements on this type of suit since it was first introduced on the market. This year's styling would seem to come the closest yet to the ideal of soft feminine lines with the minimum of fabric in the skirt itself. Skirted suits are well suited to the older woman—well suited to any woman who prefers sunning on the beach to actual swimming. Today's suits with the little boy shorts are perfect for both sunning and swimming. They have the decided advantage of camouflaging too fleshy thighs and helping to achieve that slim, trim look.

Most interesting of the new swim suit styles is the return of the tank suit first made popular by Anpette Kellerman. Originally this suit was designed strictly for women who swam professionally and who wanted comfort with the minimum of fabric.

Today's version of the tank suit is in essence the same, with the modern styling feature of a much better cut. The latter makes the tank suit wearable for any type of figure, while staying the best of all types of suits for real swimming.

TWO SUITS BEST

Women, at one time, were likely to own only one bathing suit and to keep that one for several years. Today's woman is much more likely to own at least two suits—one for sun bathing and one for swimming. The former is usually a dressmaker suit with a skirt or bloomers, while the latter is nearly always a one-piece, skin-tight suit that, while attractive, is primarily functional. Each suit is likely to be in different fabrics. The sun suit might be either cotton or wool. The swim suit is either 100 per cent nylon or a combination of nylon and other fibres. Nylon is used extensively for swimmer's suits because of its strength and quick-drying qualities—all assets to the swimmer.

With the wide variety of styling in this year's suits — the modern woman can build a wardrobe of suits — each designed either for swimming or sunning, depending upon style, fabric and construction.

THIS BATHING SUIT has the intriguing title "Double Take," named for the novel design of the contrasting halter band which can be tied also behind the bodice leaving the shoulders bare. Made of acetate and elastic fabric the suit has gentle shirring to provide hip-line interest. It is available in a variety of colors. (Designer is Catalina by Silknit, Montreal).

CONTRASTING striped and plain fabric of acetate and lastex accentuate the slim line of this swim suit. The suit is designed for active swimming or idle beach sunning. The straps are detachable. (Designer is Catalina by Silknit Ltd. of Toronto).

And during teething time—when babies are feverish, restless due to irregularity or have an upset tummy—Baby's Own Tablets not only relieve efficiently, but do it quickly. I wouldn't be without them."

Young Man with a Plan

One of these days, Fred's going to take over the farm. Meanwhile, he's planning, studying and working hard . . . learning right on the job.

Already he's learned a lot about modern farm management, and how a chartered bank can play its part in making farm living more comfortable, more profitable. He has found, for example, how useful the bank can be as a place to build up savings, to obtain credit, to seek financial advice and market information. He knows that the bank manager's door is open to everyone.

When you see a good-looking, well-run farm, chances are the farmer uses the services the chartered banks have built up for all Canadians.
