Rookie's Mark Given Setback Over Weekend

NEW YORK (—It may have been a good Christmas weekend for most people but for rookie Bob Perreault it brought the discovery that the National Hockey League isn't a goaltender's paradise after all.

Subbing for the injured Jacques Plante in the nets of the leagueleading Montreal Canadiens, the youngster from Shawinigan Falls of the Quebec League went into the holiday weekend with a gaudy 86 stops in 89 chances for a .966 average, far and away the best in the NHL.

But after he faced Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers on successive nights, the average had shrunk to .930—still a respectable figure but only third-best among the league's netminders.

The idle Plante regained the lead with his .940 mark, following New York's Lorne Worsley at .937, one point better than his figure of the previous week. Glenn Hall of Detroit Red Wings was fourth behind Perreault at .917, followed by Al Rollins of Chicago Black Hawks at .913, Terry Sawchuk of Boston Bruins at .912 and Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs at .905.

FIREMEN BATTLE flames in a three-storey apartment fire in Ottawa's Sandy Hill district. The bodies of Mrs. Herbert Steele, 36, and her four-year-old son, Barry, were found huddled near a front window. Four persons were injured. (CP Photo)

LONDON (—A letter written by the poet Samuel Coleridge, who died in 1834, to the late Maj.-Gen. Sotheby of Northampton was sold at auction for £260. The letter accompanied an original draft of Coleridge's poem "Dejection."

FIREMEN STRUGGLE through smoke to get at a fire which gutted a three-storey warehouse on York street in downtown Hamilton, Ont. Exploding paint cans and acetylene cylinders hampered the firemen in their three-hour fight. Estimates of damage ranged upwards from $500,000. The sign advertising a heating firm in the building adds an ironic touch to the picture. (CP Photo)

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Enemy's Assistance is Often a Big Help

Mr. Dale was a little short for his jump to two no trump in today's deal. According to the textbooks, he just didn't have the cards for it.

But the books make no allowance for the fact that sometimes your opponents are going to Mr. Muzzy and Mr. New, neither of whom is known for the excellence of his defensive play.

Mr. New's usual role is that of a kibitzer. He is always amazed at how much more difficult it is to do the right thing when he can see only his own hand and the dummy. Today he made the fatal mistake of basing his defense on the belief that Mr. Dale had made an error—which is exactly what the old master wanted him to believe.

Here is what happened. Mr. Muzzy led the six of hearts and Mr. Dale won with the ace, killing Mr. New's king. Counting up his winners, the old boy fell far short of the desired nine. Looking the situation over, he thought perhaps he might get the enemy to help him.

KING HOLDS

At trick two he laid down the king of diamonds. He was not surprised when it held the trick. Obviously, the defender holding the ace of diamonds was trying to hold off until the ace of clubs (the only entry to dummy) was played. This set-up was perfect for Mr. Dale's plan. He could see no reason why the enemy wouldn't think it wise to hold off again.

Accordingly he led the jack of diamonds. Mr. Muzzy's nine fell and a small card was played from the board.

This is where Mr. New figured that Mr. Dale had erred. He knew there were no more diamonds in the closed hand. He also knew the diamonds were solid except for the ace. Why, then, hadn't Mr. Dale overtaken the jack with dummy's queen and continued the suit? He must be slipping . . . so Mr. New laid off a second time.

Triumphantly, Mr. Dale now abandoned diamonds and banged down the ace and another club. Mr. New could take his king any time he chose but it was too late to do anything about defeating the contract. Mr. Dale had arranged to take four clubs, two diamonds, two hearts and a spade.

South dealer. Neither side vulnerable.
