Canada Defence Preparedness At Crucial Stage — Martin

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—Health Minister Martin said here that Canada's preparedness for civil defence in atomic war "at a juncture more serious than any in human history" is "not what we had hoped it would be."

He told a conference, convened by the country's civil defence organization and attended by 60 newspaper and radio men from points throughout Canada, that the world is on the brink of an atomic arms race in which even small nations might be taking part.

International conferences on disarmament had stumbled over Russian intractability against the establishment of an international supervisory commission to ensure that any agreement reached was enforced. The United States, the United Kingdom and Russia already had atomic weapons.

Meanwhile many countries were pursuing research.

"If Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Lebanon had atomic weapons now," he asked, "imagine what the problem would be."

Hydrogen bombs, besides multiplying 1,000-fold the blast, heat and radiation effects of the atomic bombs, added the factor of fall-out. A cloud of radioactive dust particles would descend on an area 200 miles long by 40 wide.

And shelters, considering the tremendous force involved were no answer.

"We have found evacuation to be the only solution. For us in Canada it is the only possible defence. We are in the sound position of offering few target areas and of having large open spaces. Evacuation is possible even for Montreal and Toronto."

A succession of lectures headed by federal co-ordinator F. F. Worthington said Canada, with 200,000 trained volunteers in 850 communities from coast to coast, was among the best prepared in the free world. She was spending more money on CD per capita than the U.S. and almost as much as Britain.

But more municipalities had to participate in the three-way CD setup the federal and provincial governments were trying to establish. More citizens were wanted so that should the need arise Canada would be ready.

University Education Cost High

VANCOUVER (CP)—The cost of a university education hits harder at the intelligent Canadian than "anyone else in the English-speaking world," Dr. Cyril James of Montreal said here Monday.

Dr. James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University, said there are many outstanding students across Canada who never attend university because of lack of funds. In this group "could be the Churchills, the St. Laurents, the Sir Edward Beatties of the next generation."

"The loss is incalculable and can be serious."

Dr. James was interviewed here shortly after receiving an honorary doctorate of laws from the University of British Columbia at its two-day annual congregation.

TOWN AND COUNTRY

Sweden's population reached 7,290,000 at the end of 1955, almost evenly divided between urban and rural areas.
