BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Dale Slew Mr. Abel in This Particular Round

Mrs. Rhules two-club bid was part of the Stayman convention and asked her partner to bid a four-card major suit if he had one. When Mr. Abel bid two hearts, she carried it to four. With a balanced hand and some strength in every suit she would have done better to bid three no trump over the one no trump opening.

Mr. Dale was tuned in to the bidding and since each of his opponents had shown at least a four-card heart holding and yet had steered away from no trump, it appeared that a trump opening was called for. Accordingly he laid down the ace and another heart.

South dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass

Mr. Abel won the second heart with the nine and led a third trump to dummy's jack. He returned the five of clubs and finessed the queen. Mr. Dale won with the king and led back a club, dummy's jack winning.

Mr. Abel came to his hand with the ace of spades, cashed the ace of clubs and discarded a small diamond from dummy. Next he led the queen of spades, overtook with dummy's king and trished the jack, discarding a small diamond from his own hand.

Now came the crucial play. A small diamond was led from dummy. Mrs. Keen played the five. The king was put up and it held.

Mr. Dale hesitated. He saw that whether Mr. Abel knew what he was doing or not, another diamond lead would put him in with the queen and he would have to return either a spade or a club. Either lead would let Mr. Abel ruff in dummy while discarding another diamond from his hand.

There was only one chance and he took it. He dropped the queen of diamonds under the king. Now, no matter how Mr. Abel played, he had to lose two diamond tricks to Mrs. Keen, who held the ace-10 over dummy's jack-nine.

Guards Halt Suicide Try By Convict

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A prisoner at the county jail was dragged screaming back to his cell Monday night after he clambered 30 feet up a wire mesh in his cell block and threatened to throw himself to the concrete floor.

Other prisoners in the three-tiered block screamed and pounded on their cell doors for more than an hour as jailers attempted to persuade the prisoner to leave his precarious perch.

Police said Edmund Picciotti, 22, awaiting trial for theft, set fire to the mattress in his first-tier cell, then lunged past three guards who came to extinguish the blaze.

He darted into the "pit" of the cell block and climbed monkey-like up the bars and the heavy mesh to a four-foot space where the mesh curves over the gallery of the uppermost tier. He hovered in the narrow space between the mesh and the ceiling, defying jailers police and firemen.

As the other prisoners kept up a boisterous commentary on the action, deputy sheriff Dominic Migliorati opened a door in the mesh near Picciotti and grabbed his leg.

DENIED LICENCE

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Film star George Raft said Monday he is "very, very hurt" at being denied a gambling licence in Las Vegas, Nev., on the grounds that he is unfit to hold one. The Nevada tax commission rebuffed his attempt to buy two per cent of the Flamingo Hotel for $65,000. After listening to confidential police reports linking Raft to such underworld figures as the late Bugsy Siegel, Mickey Cohen and John Capone.

DOMESTIC COURSES

About 131,000 girls and women were enrolled in technical and housewifery schools in Holland in 1953.
