The congress said it lays particular stress on the anti-dumping recommendation, saying imports from cheap markets have caused unfair competition and resulted in layoffs of workers.

IMPORTING UNEMPLOYMENT

"To prohibit such imports is not to restrict trade in any ordinary sense," it said. "Such imports . . . serve to dislocate our own productive activities. In fact, in these we are not importing cheap goods but rather expensive unemployment."

In connection with employment, the congress also asked the government to take great care that Canada's share of materials and equipment also was asked to see that, on completion, the seaway does not become a deep waterway for the ships of other countries to the virtual exclusion of Canada's.

In dealing with unemployed persons capable of work, the TLC said the federal government should accept responsibility for them.

On unemployment insurance, the congress recommended a wide range of amendments to the federal legislation, chiefly the increasing of benefit payments to at least two-thirds the weekly wage of the jobless person.

Pioneer Railroader Gets 70-Year Badge From Union

MONTREAL (CP)—Charles Martyn, whose 70 years of membership in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is unrivalled, thinks modern diesel engineers have a "gentleman's job."

The 92-year-old native of North Wilmot, N.H., began a 50-year railroad career in 1878 as a blacksmith's helper with the now defunct Stanfield, Shefford and Chambly railroad. He switched to Canadian Pacific Railway and retired to his home in suburban St. Lambert in 1928.

"It was a little different in the old days," Mr. Martyn said after being presented with his 70-year badge from the union.

"In snowstorms we had to dress like merchant seamen. We had heavy cloth curtains to shelter our open cabs in those days, but when it was snowing hard and we piled through a drift we were always covered with snow. We used to protect ourselves by wearing rubber slickers, caps and leggings."

SOVIET TOP BRASS ABSENT FROM RECENT RECEPTIONS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Soviet deputy defence minister, and Marshal Nassily Sokolovsky, chief of the Soviet general staff, have been absent from recent parades and receptions here, Western observers noted today.

Western military attaches who inquired about Sokolovsky were told Gen. Mikhail Malinin was "acting chief of staff."

Malinin was Zhukov's chief of staff during the war and later political adviser to Sokolovsky in Berlin.

Sokolovsky did not attend the traditional Red Square parade to mark the 37th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution or the following reception attended by Western diplomats.
