LOOK MA, NO BRUSH!—Vincenzo Pizzitola is an artist who would do well on either an art or boxing canvas because his painting techniques resemble those of a prize fighter. No delicate brushwork for Pizzitola, who hits, gouges, jabs and swipes with his arms and hands in doing portraits. "I paint," says Pizzitola, "from the tip of the pinkie to past the elbow." Here, the Palermo-born artist takes a strong swipe with the side of his arm to achieve a special effect. The hairs on his arms are as near as Pizzitola comes to using a brush in his work.

"NO, THANKS, I'M STUFFED"—Twelve-year-old Roger Cuff of Sutton, England, smiles as he tempts a hippopotamus at the Natural History Museum with a tasty sandwich. The hippo doesn't accept food from visitors, though, because he's stuffed all the time.
