LUTE MCCARTY'S LIFE HISTORY IS PRINTED

Was to Celebrate Wooden Wedding Last Tuesday and Release for Publication His History.

Luther McCarty's wedding anniversary was to have been celebrated last Tuesday. The story of his life and career was to have been released for publication the same day. It was therefore surely the irony of fate that he should die in a Calgary ring on Saturday. The following are a few excerpts from the story:

"Luther McCarty, heavyweight champion, of Venice, Cal., and Mrs. Rhoda McCarty, who was a Miss White, of Sidney, Ohio, will celebrate their wooden wedding tomorrow. For the benefit of the uninitiated, it may be stated that a wooden wedding commemorates the rounding out of five years of nuptial bliss. As Lute was 21st March, it may be figured out that he was only 16 annums old when he jumped the broomstick, as they say in some rural sections.

"The story of Mrs. McCarty's married career is more 'replete with incident' than that of Luther's ring history. Soon after their marriage, the boy-husband and his girl-bride left Sidney and went out into the wide-world to make their fortune. Their first stop was at Ludington, Mich., and they soon answered the call of the West, and went to Saskatchewan, where Luther expected to punch cattle and maybe pot a few injuns. He carried out the first part of his programme, securing employment on a ranch near Saskatoon, but discovered that the people of the section had a prejudice against the slaughter of redskins, and Luther left Saskatoon without a single notch on his trusty rifle. Luther's next job was in Fargo, N. D., where he worked at pressing pants and such.

"Mrs. McCarty didn't find Lute a liberal provider, and went to work as a cook in a Fargo restaurant. At one time, it is alleged, she had Lute arrested for non-support, but dismissed the charge. This by no means tells all the story of the McCarty wanderings, for he worked at a dozen different occupations, in as many cities of Western Canada and the United States, before he made good, financially, in the ring. Since he has been accumulating money in large chunks as one of those awful prizefighters, Luther is said to have provided liberally for his wife and their young daughter. If McCarty makes good and becomes a sure-enough champion, he will owe a lot to the brave little woman who shared his days of poverty and trial."

Vandalism of Militants.

London, May 29—Militant outrages, it is said, now are being committed in the residences of aristocracy in the West End. At several of the recent social functions in that section pictures and tapestries have been cut. Hostesses are alarmed and are employing detectives to protect their homes.

SLIM MULLIN MINER AND ADVENTURER DEAD

Was in the Klondike Stampede and a Pioneer of Cobalt, Gowganda and the Unknown Ungava.

Mining camps all over this country, from the wilds of the Yukon to the unexplored Ungava and those of Northern Ontario in between, have lost one of the best-known old-time miners of the picturesque type in "Slim" Mullan, who is dead at the German Hospital, Buffalo. Unlike most miners of his kind he died in good circumstances, and was a comparatively young man, but this cannot alter the fact that his career has been as romantic and adventurous as any.

"Slim" was the son of a presbyterian clergyman at Stanley, New Brunswick. When a youth some fifteen years ago he became attacked with the wanderlust and set out on his travels. He visited the mining camps of Nevada and Montana, where he made enough to keep him going. He was in the van of the rush to the Yukon in 1896 and made some big strikes. While there he became an explorer as well as miner and traveled the country far and near. He was in the Treadwell camp, but here fortune did not favor him. He got his nickname of "Slim" in the North-west Mounted Police, in which he served for some time afterwards.

He was a pioneer in the Cobalt and Gowganda stampedes, but did not meet with much luck until he staked in the Shining Tree camp, in which he is said to have made a fortune.

In Northern Ontario he continued his explorations, which were this time in Ungava. It is said that no man knew this large cold uninhabited peninsula as well as "Slim." He was passionately fond of traveling in these wilds and while sick in the hospital was planning a northern trip.

WINNIPEG'S WATER SCOPE

Ottawa, May 27.—The bill giving the city of Winnipeg power to obtain a water supply outside the confines of the province received its third reading tonight in the Commons and as it has already passed the Senate needs only the royal assent to become law.
