Records Continue To Fall In Hazardous 1956 Games

By ALLAN JACKS

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—If Cortina's hard ice and melting snows hold out for three more days, the 1956 winter Olympics promise to be the fastest and perhaps the most hazardous on record.

The Games open officially Thursday, but already records and bones have been shattered as this little resort swarms with the world's greatest skiers, skaters and bob-sledders.

While experts wondered who will be injured next the International Olympic Committee began its annual meeting.

Nothing startling is expected, although IOC president Avery Brundage of Chicago says the "perplexing" question of televising the games will be discussed.

More records fell Sunday on the ice of Lake Misurina, high in the mountains above Cortina, and on the hazardous, twisting bobsled run just outside town.

DOUBTFUL START

Russia's Eugeniy Grishin bettered the world 500-metre speed skating record with a breathtaking clocking of 40.2, 6-10th of a second better than the old mark.

Other contestants said Grishin jumped the gun and an official admitted there may have been a bad start. The question will be studied, but even so, most experts agreed Grishin would have done 40.5 with a normal start.

The Italians, who are working on their "home" course, cracked both the two-man and four-man bobsled marks for the 1,700-metre run and even better times are expected. The Swedes and Americans are hinting at "mystery sleds" they plan to introduce.

BLAME MELTING SNOW

Meanwhile, skiers from 15 countries have been working out for the downhill and slalom events on the icy slopes of Tofana mountain. The bumpy, winding courses already have taken a heavy toll in injuries.

Some skiers blamed the injuries on snow which has been melting daily and freezing solid at night. There has been no snowfall in 13 days and bare spots are cropping up in some areas. All agree, however, that there's enough snow to go on with the Alpine events, scheduled to start with the women's giant slalom Friday.

The greatest daredevils of them all perhaps, the ski jumpers, have escaped injury so far, but seasoned observers are shaking their heads, especially over the fearless jumping of the tough, but awkward, Russian delegation. And other things besides snow and ice have cropped up to present problems.

DECISION IN TWO YEARS

The Columbia Broadcasting System, the National Broadcasting Company and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation announced they have not yet decided to cover the summer games in Melbourne, Australia.

They said they will await a ruling by the IOC on Olympic television monopolies. Unofficial sources here say the Melbourne organizers are demanding $500,000 for TV rights.

The three networks petitioned Brundage to "restore freedom of the press especially so far as television and radio is concerned." Brundage promised to go into the matter but indicated it may be two years before the question is settled.

But the spirit of the Olympics has not been dimmed. The symbolic Olympic torch is en route here from Rome—by modern means of automobile and train—and will be lighted Thursday.

Underground Ready to Act At Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—On the sidelines in the dispute over Cyprus—but ready to act with considerable force—is the Vulkan, an armed Turkish underground organization.

Vulkan (volcano) leaders warn as they view battles between the Greek underground army Eoka and British troops:

"If the British can't handle them, we can."

The 100,000 Cypriots of Turkish origin favor continued British rule and declare they will oppose to the death the Greek majority movement for Enosis (union with Greece). Some 400,000 of the islanders are of Greek descent.

Turkey itself has made clear it wants Britain to remain on Cyprus and maintain it as an Allied fortress in the eastern Mediterranean. But it has given no open support to Turkish Cypriots as Athens has to Enosis.

Turks here predict, however, that Turkey will pull out of the Bagdad alliance if Britain yields to Greece on the Cyprus issue. They speculate that if British forces are withdrawn from the island, Turkey's armed forces will replace them. Turkey's mainland is only 40 miles north of Cyprus. Greece is 600 miles to the east. Turkey ruled Cyprus for 300 years after winning it from the Venetians and Crusader kings.

Said one Vulkan spokesman:

"We know what happened to the 50,000 Turks on Crete when Greece took over that island. After 50 years, there wasn't a single Turk left."

Canadian Olympic Team Hit Hard by Injuries

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—The worst injury jinx in winter Olympic history struck hard again today when an American downhill skier, Leslie Streeter, tumbled and broke his right shoulder. He is out of the games.

Sonja Sperl, 19-year-old German star who won the ladies' downhill at Hahnenkamm, Austria, two weeks ago, also tumbled on the icy ski slopes. The German team physician said she tore ligaments in her right foot but that it is too early to tell whether she can compete.

Canada's team has had its share of the injuries plaguing contestants in the final days of training for the winter games. With three days of practice to go before Thursday's official opening, one Canadian is definitely out and six others are hobbling about with assorted aches and pains.

REPLACE SKI COACH

An eighth member of the Canadian contingent, coach Franz Gabl of the men's ski team, also is lost to the squad and has been replaced.

Skier Andy Tommy of Ottawa, sidelined with a broken leg, will miss this Olympic competitions.

Gabl, the men's ski coach from Banff, Alta., suffered a twisted knee and concussion more than a week ago at his birthplace of St. Anton, Austria. Olympic officials today gave Canada permission to engage a top European coach, Walter Clausing, in his place.

Temporarily disabled Canadians include:

Art Tommy, brother of Andy, twisted ankle.

Ginette (Gigi) Seguin, Quebec slalom expert, ankle injuries.

Carlyn Kruger, St. Sauveur, Que. skier, cold.

Centre Ken Laufman of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, slight concussion.

Apart from Andy Tommy, who joined the team as a spectator Sunday, all the Canadian casualties are expected to be ready for action. And the three-man speed-skating team is injury-free.

NOT ENOUGH SNOW

Lack of snow is blamed for the heavy incidence of skiing injuries. Canadian team manager Pat Ramage complained that "rocks stick out all over the place."

And 16-year-old Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa, youngest of the Canadians, said the course is so bumpy that it "saps the strength right out of your legs before you're half-way down—and it's when your legs go that you get into trouble."

The healthy members of the Canadian team kept busy. Clarence and Irwin Servold of Camrose, Alta., the nordic-combined entry, took part in a meet at Andermatt, Switzerland, with Irwin finishing 10th in the nordic combined event while Clarence placed 12th in the cross-country.

Andre Bertrand of Quebec City was out on the giant slalom course. The Dutchmen had a light workout and the figure-skaters also went through their paces.
