FAMOUS DEVICE

LONDON (AP)—A replica of the famed wooden vaulting horse used by British prisoners of war to conceal tunnel-digging for an escape from a German prison camp in the Second World War has been placed in the Imperial War Museum at Lambeth. Like the original, it is made from packing cases stamped with the labels of the International Red Cross.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Signals Are Generally Abused or Misunderstood

Signaling at bridge is a very important part of the game. And signals are often overlooked, misread, misunderstood, abused and generally kicked around for the loss of many thousands of points.

Today's hand shows one of the simplest signaling devices. As it happened Mr. Meek could have made an easy game at no trump. But at his four spade contract he didn't have a chance.

Mrs. Keene opened the king of hearts and noted her partner's play of the ten. This unnecessarily high card encouraged her to continue the suit and she laid down the ace. On this trick Mr. Dale played the deuce.

HIGH-LOW SIGN

Mr. Dale's play of high, then low, indicated it would be to his side's advantage to have a third heart led. In other words, at trick three he either had the queen left or was out of the suit and could ruff.

He did ruff the third lead of hearts and eventually won a trick with the king of clubs to defeat the contract.

Tht idea of signalling for continuation of a suit by playing high-low was first introduced into whist, fore-runner of contract bridge, in 1845. Mr. Champion points out that today, over 120 years later, Mr. Muzzy still doesn't recognize it.

DECLINE AND FALL

When the device was new many players considered it practically equivalent to cheating. A Londoner named Pembroke was particularly indignant and wrote a book on the subject entitled "The Decline and Fall of Whist."

Cavendish, in his book on whist published in 1874, invented the name "echo" for this fiendish practice and in 1903 Elwell applied the high-low signal to bridge. Elwell was murdered soon after that and his death is still one of the unsolved mysteries of the century. (There is no evidence that his use of the echo had anything to do with it.)

Anyway, the complexity of signaling in recent years has become appalling. We'll look into the subject in following columns.

Further details of Spring League winners will be published tomorow.

U.S. Swimmer To Try Again Within 20 Days

VICTORIA (AP) — Swimmer Bert Thomas, plans to tackle Juan de Fuca strait, within 20 days over a new course.

The 250-pound Tacoma, Wash. logger, who twice has failed to become the first person to swim between here and Port Angeles, Wash., said Tuesday he has a new course that will depend less on tide changes than the one he used in April and earlier this month.

HYDRO EXPERTS
