Woman Ends Sit-Down Strike

VICTORIA (CP)—Mrs. Bea Zucco Thursday ended her nine-day sitdown strike on the front steps of the legislative buildings here.

"I'm still very determined and will keep on pressing for a pension for my husband," she said as she left the buildings.

Mrs. Zucco was protesting the decision of the workmen's compensation board not to grant her husband, a former miner, a silicosis pension. The pension was refused by the board because it says Mr. Zucco was not disabled by silicosis, a disease caused by inhaling quartz dusts.

Mrs. Zucco says tuberculosis contracted later has hidden the silicosis scars.

"It hasn't been a waste of time but I feel I'm up against something I don't know how to cope with," she said.

SECOND STRIKE

Mrs. Zucco began her second sit-down strike last week and said she would stay at the legislature until after the provincial election here Wednesday. She staged a similar wait for two days last February.

She said she had not been approached by any government official during her stay although an average of 12 people stopped to talk with her each day.

Mrs. Zucco will return to Vancouver today and await happenings of her claims for compensation, now in the hands of the Supreme Court.

"We will wait until the court's decision before making a new move," she said. "But I might be back."
