B.C. Game Commissioner, Inspector Top Gun Club Banquet Guest List

Frank Butler, game commissioner for British Columbia, and Walter Gill, game inspector for Prince George, will be the guests of honor at the Prince Rupert Rod and Gun Club's annual banquet this Saturday, gun club members were told at their regular meeting at the Moose Hall last Monday.

At the banquet, the more than 60 invited guests will, following preliminary courses, be offered red spring salmon and a choice of buffalo meat, moose meat and venison.

A work party was held yesterday to prepare the trap range for the shoot which will be held this Sunday at which teams from Kemano, Kitimat and possibly Terrace will compete with local scatter gun enthusiasts.

In other business the membership endorsed holding an inter-city .22 calibre target shoot for boys, from Prince Rupert, Ocean Falls, Kitimat and the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Competition will be conducted by mail, with competitors submitting scores made on targets sent to them from Prince Rupert.

In future, regular meetings will be held at the Oliver Lake clubhouse on the second Thursday of each month. The executive announced it will endeavor to keep the meetings short so that a social evening can be held afterward.

$50,000 Campaign Planned To Woo Interest in Tennis

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)— The once-staid U.S. Lawn Tennis Association has come up with a new formula for winning back the Davis Cup—comic books, and a tall, willowy blonde.

The blonde is Christine White of Washington, D.C., identified in the press releases as a "brainy Broadway actress.'

She was unveiled Wednesday as "Miss Tennis of 1956."

She is part of a $50,000 campaign—which also includes 1,500,000 comic books—designed to stimulate new interest in tennis and result in the early recapture of the Davis Cup from Australia.

"I think this drive is going to be tremendous." Renville McMann, new president of the USLTA, told a press conference. "I predict in two or three years our Davis Cup superiority will match that of the Wightman Cup."

The U.S. never has lost the Wightman Cup, the women's version of the Davis Cup. Lately the Davis Cup has been spending most of its time Down Under.

THRILLED PINK

Miss White is a pretty blue-eyed former University of North Carolina co-ed who is understudying Shelley Winters in the Broadway play "A Hatful of Rain."

"I'm thrilled pink,' Chris said demurely, giving her blonde hair a quick toss and raising her skirt a bit higher for some photographic cheese cake.

"I'll do anything for tennis," she added.

Her immediate job will be to appear at all the big tournaments—beginning with the U.S. indoor tournament starting Feb. 22—and pose prettily with the racket stars.

"One thing we want to do is get over to young boys and girls that tennis is not a sissy game," said McMann. "It's a tough sport. We're going to have a book published giving the whole history of tennis, and we're going to put out comic books on the game and its great stars."
