Soviet Press Both Gleeful And Critical

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Big headlines in the Soviet press Sunday proclaimed Russia's delight in her unofficial points victory over American athletes at the Melbourne Olympic Games.

But notes of criticism were sounded. The government newspaper Izvestia said: "Track and field athletes were disappointing, especially women sprinters and broad jumpers. Great hopes were placed on them.

"Cyclists, yachtsmen and fencers also performed badly."

A typical headline was "Brilliant victory of Soviet sport."

UNFORTUNATE TIME

Some newspapers, such as the organ of the Communist youth league Komsomol Pravda, complained of attempts to mix "cold war" politics with the Olympics.

But the trade union newspaper Trud declared that the Olympics took place at an unfortunate time for "the friends of peace" what with "peaceful homes of Egyptians set ablaze by Anglo-French and Israeli imperialists" and events in Hungary.

Trud added: "The pitiful little squeaking and toad-like croaking of those who tried during these days to defame Russia were completely lost in the tremendous ovations with which sportsmen of the whole world and Australian sports fans greeted the flag of the U.S.S.R."
