BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

MR. MUZZY was kibitzing Mr. Champion on this hand, hoping to catch the great man in an error. Mrs. Keen led the jack of diamonds and it was won on the board with the king.

Looking the hand over, Mr. Champion saw that he had two sure losers in the side suits—one club and one heart. He was willing to lose one trick in spades but planned to take every possible precaution to avoid the loss of two tricks in that suit.

At the second trick he led dummy's king of spades, at which Mr. Muzzy snorted and muttered "smart alec stuff." The next play was a small diamond to the ace in the closed hand, followed by a small spade lead toward dummy's jack. When Mrs. Keen showed out, Mr. Champion put up dummy's jack and it lost to the queen.

He won the club return with dummy's ace. He then led the four of spades from the board and since he held ace-nine over Miss Brash's ten-seven, he was able to pick up both of her trumps without further loss in the suit.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Jack of diamonds.

As you see, this play would have been just as effective if it had been Mrs. Keen who held four spades to the queen-ten. Leading from his own hand toward the jack of spades on the second round of the suit would have assured Mr. Champion of winning three of the first four spade tricks.

"Very fancy play in the trump suit," Mr. Muzzy sneered. "But I would have got exactly the same result. I would have led a small spade and finessed dummy's jack on the first round.

"Miss Brash would have won with her queen but as soon as I got in again I would have cashed the king of spades and then I'd have the ace nine over her ten-seven just as you did."

"So your method is just as good as mine," said Mr. Champion.

"No doubt about it."

"Nothing to choose between your play and mine?"

"Nothing," said Mr. Muzzy.

"Then tell me," snapped Mr. Champion, "where would you have been if Miss Brash had started with the singleton queen of spades. I'd still have lost only one spade trick . . . How about you?"
