Pro curlers defined in Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A professional curler was defined for the first time Tuesday by the Ontario Curling Association.

There haven't been many pros in Canadian curling—two notable ones were Saskatchewan's Campbell brothers, Don and Garnet. The ink wasn't dry on a new OCA bylaw Tuesday when Don announced he was quitting his job as instructor at the Royal Canadian Club here. He will still be secretary-manager at Tam O'Shanter.

The OCA annual meeting sought to define professionalism with this rule amendment:

"No registered member who acts as an instructor or teacher of curling and receives payment or other remuneration for such services, shall play in any association competition."

Among other things, the amendment clarifies the position of club secretary-managers who may instruct members.

There is no prohibition on teaching for free. The bylaw also excludes physical education teachers who may coach schoolboy curlers.

Any pro who resigns can return immediately to amateur status without penalty or waiting period.

50-50 mission gets underway

The final phase of the "50-50" Mission sponsored by First Presbyterian and First United Churches began last night when about 60 people heard Dr. John A. Ross, Dean of St. Andrew's Hall, Presbyterian students' residence at UBC, preach in First United church on the subject "He Lives".

First half of the "50-50 Mission" was held last March with Dr. William G. Berry of Toronto as missioner.

"Word of the Prince of Prince Rupert" is the theme of Dr. Ross's five addresses this week.

"The risen and living Christ is the real Prince of Prince Rupert", said Dr. Ross last night, "and I'm betting my life on Him because He alone has eternal life in Him, all else is doomed to death". Fifteen people stayed behind after the service at Dr. Ross's invitation to engage in a period of Bible study, prayer and fellowship.

First United Junior Choir under the direction of Mrs. F. H. Thomas was in attendance last night, with Betty McGill and Louise Thomas taking solo parts. Douglas Archibald opened the service by leading a hymn sing, while four Sigma-C boys acted as ushers.

Rev. Ivan S. Gamble read the scripture and led in prayer, with Rev. Vernon E. McEachern conducting, the service.

The mission continues tonight in First Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. with Dr. Ross's topic being "He Can Live in YOU."

Greaves seeks 8th win in row

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Wilf Greaves of Edmonton, Canada's middleweight boxing champion, seeks his eighth straight victory of the year tonight in a 10-round bout with Bill Tuck of Louisville.

Greaves has won 23, lost nine and tied once. Tuck has a 28-4-1 record and will be the underdog. He has won his last five.

Outdoors with Marty

By ERIC S. MARTIN
Daily News Outdoor Writer

Never before has the Game Regulation sheet shown so clearly the requirements as to evidence of sex on game animals reduced to possession. Yet never before have there been so many cases where examination shows a complete lack of knowledge of this most important item. Right now one third of the moose and deer being transported by automobiles along highway 16 show no proper evidence of being legally taken bulls or bucks, this despite the fact that the transporting car is liable to confiscation, together with all rifles and other equipment therein, plus the fine that may be levied upon all occupants.

There may be some remnant of an old wives tale still going the rounds to the effect that the fact of leaving certain male characteristics upon the carcass will cause the meat to become tainted and malodorous. Let there be an end to such nonsense immediately, and remember that epicures pay good money to dine on this long favored delicacy.

The deer and moose of this country have no gland that may cause any culinary or gustatory unpleasantness. The only scent gland that lies anywhere near edible meat is located on the hind legs behind and below the knees, surely this part never gets cooked!

With moose spreading further west into the vicinity of this city it would appear that many more will be taken, and enforcement of the game laws become more strict under additional road blocks. Therefore leave the cow and doe alone until the season is open for them, you may now reckon on regular anterless hunts each year in line with the now proven good game management policy.

More people losing out through taking a chance on loaded firearms in the car. This dangerous practice is completely unnecessary, any real hunter knows why. Take the grouse along the road. This bird is most distinctive in all his varied stances and will never be mistaken for any other bird. Learn to recognize him and you will find that he gives the hunter lots of time to step out, load and approach for a shot. Be a better hunter by studying the quarry, and knowing what to look for! Know him at a distance and at a glance!

For your own future benefit, the jaws of moose are still urgently required for study by the Game Management branch. Turn yours in to the Game Warden's office in the Court House and do yourself a good turn. This lower jaw comes out fairly easily. Just skin back to the turn of the jaw and lay the back teeth bare; a sharp blow of the axe will separate the jaws in front and another stroke will break the jaw behind the teeth. A few knife cuts will free the jaw from the skull, and that's all.

Your scribe has noted two bears and one cow moose carrying gunshot wounds, these animals all this side of Terrace and near the travelled road denote poor hunting by people armed with inadequate weapons.

Never start a shooting job that you do not or cannot finish; only the rarest circumstances prevent the true sportsman leaving a wounded creature to die without the mercy of the final shot.
