IT IS REPORTED THAT THE ACQUISITION OF THE MAIN LINE AND BRANCHES WILL BE DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE OF PREMIERS.

(Special to The Daily News.)
Ottawa, July 4.—That the government of Canada will shortly take over the Canadian Northern Railway is reported here on good authority. The acquisition of the main line and branches will be discussed shortly, it is said, at the conference of provincial premiers here. The road in any event will seek further financial aid from the Dominion, and its control by commission is probable. The Dominion and provincial governments are already guaranteeing it security which amounts to over one hundred and twenty million dollars.

Ottawa, July 4.—Efforts to secure any official confirmation of the report of the contemplation by the government of the acquisition of the Canadian Northern Railway are unavailing. Most of the cabinet ministers are out of town.

FOURTH OF JULY

Echoes of Great American Celebration Heard in This City.

The celebration of American independence began in this city about the time when midnight was passed in the United States. It began with the explosion of a huge pile of crackers at the junction of Sixth street and Third avenue, which sounded like the cracking rapid fire of the advance of an army. This was repeated several times at intervals, and fully informed the quiet people of this Canadian burg that the usual long list of Fourth of July accidents over the boundary may be expected in the telegraphic accounts of the Daily News tomorrow. During today the small boys have been firing salutes and waving the Stars and Stripes.

A. Field, who has been here travelling for a cigar firm, went south on the steamer Prince George this morning. Phone 4.

She is nothing daunted by the recent failure of her followers to accomplish this bold stroke successfully.

TAXATION OF GERMAN RULERS DISCUSSED IN THE REICHSTAG

QUESTION OF LIABILITY OF THE RULING PRINCES TO ORDINARY ASSESSMENT AND THEIR EXEMPTION FROM TAXATION.

A recent session of the budget committee of the Reichstag was occupied by the continuation of the debate on the question whether the obligation of the German sovereigns to contribute to the unique £50,000,000 "war tax" should be fixed by statute. Two main points were raised by the discussion: first, whether these rulers could be regarded as fully embodying the principle of "sovereignty" in the Empire, as a whole; secondly, whether in the event of the foregoing question being answered in the affirmative, they could be exempted by the legislature to pay taxation.

The government and the Conservatives advanced the view that as members of the federal council, in which full imperial sovereignty resides, the ruling princes were themselves completely endowed with sovereign attributes, and that since they had been exempt from taxation before the federation, and the federal compact had said they could not now be compelled to contribute to the revenue of the Empire.

A large majority of the committee, however, was of opinion that the federated rulers were not in the fullest sense "sovereign" in the Empire, that they consequently could not claim the exemption demanded and that, in any event, they paid indirect taxation, which differed from direct in manner rather than in substance.

It had been pointed out by the government representatives that the original Socialist motion on which the debate was concentrated, and which expressly provided the liability of rulers, implied their exemption with regard to other taxation. Recognizing the force of this contention, the Socialists withdrew their motion, and substituted another, which served their ends equally well by implying this liability. It was to the effect that "the federal council decides who has to make the assessment declaration for the federal princes and for members of formerly sovereign houses." This motion was eventually carried by a substantial majority.

WAS LARGEST LAND OWNER IN EUROPE

Late Duke of Sutherland and His Vast Tract of Fine Farms in Alberta.

Cromarty Sutherland-Leveson-Gower, fourth Duke of Sutherland, was born July 20, 1851, and he was, with the exception of the Emperor of Russia, the largest land owner in Europe. His Scottish estates embraced nearly a million and a half acres. He owned 30,000 acres in Staffordshire and Shropshire and much landed property in other countries. He was noted as a sportsman and a fine yachtsman. His yachts included the Catania and Lizzette.

In 1884 he married Lady Millicent Fanny St. Clair-Erskine, daughter of the fourth Earl of Rosslyn, two sons and one daughter being the result of the union. In recent years the Duke has been deeply interested in a colonization scheme for Western Canada, and to that end had purchased vast tracts of territory.

His colony near Brooks, Alta., is on a farm of 7,251 acres. This vast tract of land is divided up into farms. Before farmers came to settle on them the farms were prepared for them, in much the same way as the C. P. R. prepares ready made farms. The house and barns were erected, a well dug, the farm was fenced and about 50 acres were broken and seeded.

The farms range in size from 60 to 320 acres, upon which the Duke placed tenants from his estate in Scotland, preferably married men. These farms were taken by the men under a payment arrangement which will ultimately give them the title to their property.

AGED WOMAN SHOPS FOR HER OWN COFFIN

Distrusting Her Husband's Relatives, She Selects Shell to Suit Herself.

New York, July 1.—"And when the good Lord deems it advisable to call me from this world, He shall not find me unprepared." In this way Mrs. Elizabeth Watt, 85 years old, explained the presence in the parlor of her little home, on the top floor of No. 450 West Forty-second street, of an expensive mahogany coffin.

"Why did I buy it?" she asked. "Before the death of my husband, Andrew, twenty years ago, we had saved up quite a bit of money. I still have some of it. Certain of my husband's relatives have been trying to get it away from me, and I know that when I die they will get it. I came to the conclusion that if I wanted to mate certain of a decent burial I would have to see to it myself before I died. Therefore, I visited an undertaker yesterday and had the coffin brought to the house. Isn't it beautiful?"

Just one visitor at a time. The guest is expected to do all the talking, for the royal patient still has to keep exceedingly quiet. Perhaps the guest who amuses the Duchess most is Mrs. George West, who has something entertaining to relate even though she is said to be feeling deeply her own troubles of the moment.
