PARKS COMMISSION BRIEFS

Carnivals barred from Algoma due to "unsanitary" conditions

Use of Algoma park by carnivals has been prohibited by Prince Rupert Parks Commission upon a recommendation by the medical health officer.

The Commission made the decision at its regular meeting Tuesday night after listening to a letter from W. B. Laing, Director of the Skeena health unit.

The letter stated that grounds were "unsanitary" as they had no washroom facilities and that the carnivals were not cleaning up after them.

Commissioner Carl Andren told the commission that a group of soccer players spent eight hours cleaning the greater portion of the park after the last circus had left.

Parents have been urged by the Parks Commission to keep their children away from the small fountain at Alder Park on Fraser Street.

The Commission pointed out the danger to children who sometimes use the fountain as a wading pool.

Chairman Arthur Murray said that people throw various refuge including broken bottles into the fountain.

A Pan-abode structure to be used as a concession at Gyro Park has been purchased by the Parks Commission and will be erected in the early fall.

It was decided by the commission that the concession presently being operated by a private individual is satisfactory for the remaining portion of the summer season.

Commission took action in regards to a complaint by Mrs. R. G. Scott that softballs hit out of Gyro Park often landed on her property on 111 Seventh Avenue East.

The right field fence abutting Mrs. Scott's property is being repaired, Carl Gustafson, City works Superintendent said.

A "no parking at any time" sign will be erected at the entrance of McClymont park.

Only exceptions will be for ambulance and emergency parking.

Parks Supervisor Ernest Novakowski told the commission that the old gillnet boat wheih was placed in McClymont park for children to play in was being badly abused. He asked for permission to have it destroyed.

The commission granted Mr. Novakowski permission to dispose of the boat by having a bonfire for the children.

RCMP STAFF SERGEANT G. J. EMSLEY AND MRS. EMSLEY are shown above prior to sailing last night aboard the Prince George for Vancouver. The popular couple following a three and a half year tenure in the city will make their home in New Westminster where S/Sgt. Emsley has been transferred as sub-division non commissioned officer in charge. During his post in Prince Rupert S/Sgt. Emsley was sectioned NCO and later transferred to sub-division NCO. At a party held in their honor in the Petty Officer's Mess at HMCS Chatham last week they were presented with an electric frying pan by RCMP Inspector H. E. Bloxham, on behalf of the RCMP personnel. Commodore Finch-Noyes no stranger to Rupert

The new chief of Royal Canadian Naval divisions is no stranger to Prince Rupert it was learned Tuesday when he paid a brief official visit to RCN reserve division HMCS Chatham.

Commodore E. W. Finch-Noyes, CD, RCN, told The Daily News that he was first here in 1936 on the Canadian destroyer HMCS Vancouver which was skippered at that time by Vice-admiral E. R. Mainguy, OBE, CD. RCN (ret.) who was then a lieutenant-commander. Commodore Finch-Noyes, who said he was also a lieutenant commander at that time, was executive officer on the HMCS Vancouver.

"I was also here on patrol for about a year during the second World War," the commodore said.

"I was executive officer on the armed merchant cruiser Prince Henry, we cruised between Prince Rupert and the Queen Charlotte Islands." He said that the Prince Henry was at that time commanded by Capt. John C. I. "Dutchy" Edwards who later became a commodore and is now retired.

After the war Commodore Finch-Noyes served on the HMCS Uganda commanded by Rear Admiral Admiral K. F. Adams, whom he succeeded April 2 when the latter retired.

Commodore Finch-Noyes said that he was making an official tour of all the naval and reserve establishments in Canada so that he would be familiar with them when he makes his annual inspection tour next spring.

Tuesday night Commodore Finch-Noyes met with officers of HMCS Chatham and yesterday morning left by plane, to continue his tour. When he completes his official calls he will return to headquarters of Naval divisions at Hamilton, Ont.

HEAR YE! HEAR YE! Glamorous petite cakes that will win orchids for you can be yours, so easily, with Borden's EAGLE BRAND Sweetened Condensed Milk. Do clip this recipe—

Lemon Refrigerator Cakes

1-1/3 cups (1 can) Borden's Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk — 1/2 cup lemon juice — 1 tsp. grated lemon rind — About 27 graham wafers — Butter icing, or whipped cream.

Blend Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk, lemon juice and lemon rind, until mixture thickens. Line a 8-inch square pan with waxed paper, then place 9 graham wafers on the bottom, fitting them closely together. Cover with half the lemon filling, making sure wafers remain in place. Repeat this layer of wafers and filling. Top with layer of wafers. Allow to ripen in refrigerator 12 hours or more. To serve—unmold, cover with butter icing, cut in 1-1/2 inch squares. Makes 36 delicious petite cakes. For a glamorous dessert use whipped cream in place of butter icing and cut in larger squares.
